House kills collective bargaining plan

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment allowing public employes the right to bargain collectively was killed today by the Missouri House.

"It is an invitation to anarchy. It is something we cannot have in this society," said Republican floor leader Robert Snyder.

He objected to the proposal because it would have made the right to bargain collectively a constitutional right for public employes and would have included policemen.

The measure fell seven votes short of the necessary 82 for final passage.

Given approval and sent to the governor was a House bill providing for regulation of the qualifications of doctors. The bill has been approved by the Senate and House approval was needed for a minor amendment.

It would provide that the state Board of Healing Arts could compel a doctor to undergo a mental or physical examination to determine his fitness for practicing medicine. Failure to submit could result in suspension of his license.

In the Senate, there was little debate before approval was given to a provisions deleting from the state's "sunshine law" a section calling for the destruction of criminal records in St. Louis and Jackson counties within one year if there is no conviction in the case.

But the revised bill, which was approved Monday 32-0 and sent to the House, would still require such records to be closed to everyone except police agencies and the defendant 30 days after a judge signs the order.

Also retained was the provision closing arrest records after 30 days unless the person is officially charged with a crime. Records of convictions will remain public as in the past.

In an attempt to halt the State Agriculture Department from keeping milk pricing records secret because they may be involved in a court case, the Senate included a section prohibiting such actions on the part of public agencies.

That move is in tune with a previous Senate action declaring as a "nullity" the recent Attorney General's opinion that upheld the Agriculture Department's stance on the secrecy of the milk pricing records.

The Senate again defeated a bill to provide full state funding for Missouri Western and Missouri Southern State Colleges. The measure, sponsored by Sen. Truman Wilson, D-St. Joseph, was beaten down last week and has met opposition every since getting to the Senate floor.

A proposal banning the use of metal studded snow tires from April 1 to Nov. 1 gained final approval from the Senate Monday. But the sponsor, Sen. William Waters, D-Liberty, said he would accept a House amendment to move the spring date up to April 15.

The House also was sent a measure boosting the tax rate for Three Rivers, Mineral Area and State Fair junior college districts from 30-cents per $100 assessed valuation to 40 cents.

The House, although giving approval to two minor appropriations bills, spent most of the Monday session in lengthy and sometimes humorous debate on a bill to exempt several items from the state sales tax but took no action on the measure.

The governor was sent a bill by the Senate setting a $3 tax per new car and a $1.50 tax per used car to replace the value added property tax on car dealers. Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed a similar measure last year.

The Senate also gave approval to:

—Creation of a State Division of Training Schools to replace the Board of Training Schools while requiring that inmates be separated by offense.

Court orders 17 Chaffee citizens to pay trash bills

BENTON — After deliberating for approximately 20 minutes Monday, a Circuit Court jury awarded judgment in favor of the Chaffee City Council in a civil suit against 17 residents it charged were in violation of the city's solid waste ordinance by failing to pay a $3 per month service charge for removal of garbage. The judgment assessesed each of the 17 citizens $9 for three months of unpaid service.

Chaffee's solid waste ordinance, which became effective last September, specifies that all residents of the city must pay $3 per month for trash removal whether they use the service or not.

The ordinance was vigorously protested by a group of Chaffee residents who circulated petitions reportedly signed by more than 500 townspeople.

The attorney for the complaining residents stated that the charge is more a tax than a service charge since the residents are charged even if they do not use the service.

Residents charged in the suit included:

MissCo seeks to qualify for flood insurance

CHARLESTON — Flood plain protection for Mississippi County was discussed Monday by the County Court, which is seeking qualification of Mississippi County for flood insurance.

The court was told by W. Clifton Banta Jr. that if House bill 1366 is passed, it would not be necessary to hold an election for the purpose of establishing a county planning and zoning commission. The bill simplifies the ways a county can meet requirements which qualify it for flood insurance protection.

If the bill is defeated, the court agreed to place a proposal for establishing a Mississippi County planning and zoning commission on the August primary election ballot.

Presiding Judge Bill Winchester pointed out Monday that the court is striving to meet qualifications for flood insurance and stated that, to the court's knowledge, no surrounding county has yet qualified for flood insurance.

Approximately 35 acres of surplus land surrounding the county airport site was rented, on a crop- rent basis for this year, to the Rolwing brothers, from whom the airport property was purchased.

Representatives from the Soil and Water Conservation Department and engineers for the Missouri State Highway Department were present at Monday's meeting and bridges in the proposed watershed district, along with other drainage problems, were discussed.

The court authorized Waters and Associates, a Sikeston engineering firm, to draw up plans for the roadway into the landfill site near Commerce and submit them for state approval.

The sale of a house on South Main Street by the health department brought opposition from six persons living in the immediate vicinity of the house.

It was pointed out that the County Court had nothing to do with either the purchasing or selling of the

A preliminary hearing into charges of assault and battery and burglary and stealing will be held the same day for Roberts, as well as a preliminary for a burglary and stealing charge against Charles Roberts. Both men are accused of stealing tools from Paul Dugger, Route Two.

Punishment was deferred for one year on a driving while intoxicated charge against Robert Thomas, 207 Petty St.

County gets $47,846

BENTON — Scott County Treasurer Hess Porter reported today that his office has received a $47,846 check for federal revenue- sharing funds due to Scott County from the United States Treasury Department.

Porter said the payment is the third the county has received under the entitlement period from July 1, 1973 until June 30 of this year.

The check raised the total received by the county for the year to $143,538.

One more payment will be made to the county during the entitlement period, he said.

Parma marshal resigns

PARMA — City Marshal Hollis "Doc" Lindley submitted a written resignation at 9 a.m. today to the City Council. Lindley did not specify any reason for his resignation, and Mayor Randall Ramsey said he did not know why Lindley resigned.

Ramsey, however, did state that he had talked with Lindley concerning an incident which occurred Saturday between the marshal and another man on a city street.

Ramsey said there were two sides to the story and the matter was not pursued. No charges have been made against the marshal.

Lindley was first elected in 1967 and had one more year to serve on his present term.

Ramsey said a special election will probably be held to fill the vacancy.

Colvin in fair condition after Dexter stabbling

DEXTER — John Gregory Lynn Colvin, 27, of Dexter underwent emergency surgery Monday night at Dexter Memorial Hospital, where he was taken for treatment of a stab wound in the abdomen. He was reported in fair condition today.

The Stoddard County Sheriff's Department reported today that Colvin was stabbed about 7:30 p.m. at a home on Ray Street in Dexter's east side. A suspect is being held in the county jail for investigation. The stabbing incident was the third reported in the county in the past two weeks, one of which resulted in the death of a Brownwood man.

Arvin workers like small town atmosphere

By WANDA ATCHLEY

DEXTER— In the year 1790, when the first census was taken, there were only six cities in the United States with a population of 8,000. Since that time the figure has grown to over 2,300 American cities of that size with over 50 million Americans living in cities of 100,000 population or more.

In recent years, however, there has been a noticeable national trend back to small towns and rural areas. Whether it be a yearning for open spaces, a search for one's roots or to escape the noise and traffic of city life, people are definitely coming back. Some return to the small towns of their youth and others just in search of an attractive small city where the pace is a little slower.

The new 300,000 square-foot Arvin Industries Inc. plant, which recently located in Dexter, has helped provide a way home for some of these people by providing 400 new job opportunities which previously did not exist.

The city government and Chamber of Commerce of this small Southeast Missouri city have worked hard to encourage industry to locate here by providing an excellent school system, hospital, library, city parks and good streets and roads.

The firm chose Dexter as the site for a new plant after several months of study of 15 cities and, along with other firms which have located here in the past few years, may stop or at least slow down the exodus of the city's young people to city life.

An example of a returnee to small town life is Arvin employe Gene Woodall, his wife Carole and daughter Brenda who recently moved to Dexter from the Chicago area

Woodall, who grew up in the Dexter area but left due to limited job opportunities, says he is glad to be back even though it meant giving up an excellent job and a new home just purchased last year.

Woodall left the Dexter area in the early 1960s when he failed to find suitable employment after his discharge from military service. He said that when he heard of the new plant being constructed here, he applied for a job immediately.

Some of the things he said he missed most in his over 12- year absence from the Southeast Missouri area were the warmth and friendliness of the people here and, since he is an avid sportsman, the outstanding hunting and fishing opportunities this area provides.

Partial operations at the Arvin Industries plant, which manufactures exhaust systems and other automobile related products, began in March. The new plant is located on a 40- acre tract owned by the Chamber of Commerce in Dexter's new West side industrial park

LIGHT AND LIABILITY

Americans have responded well to the call to cut back on their use of energy — in some cases too well.

The owners of commercial and residential properties who use the energy crisis as an excuse to reduce lighting excessively "can jeopardize the safety of tenants and visitors and subject themselves to liability suits," warns Leonard M. Ring, president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, the nation's largest trial bar association.

The association, says Ring, has received scores of reports from state trial bar associations and individual members telling of a significant increase in injuries and assaults that can be traced directly to insufficient lighting.

Public hallways, stairwells, basements, fire escape exits, corridors, garages and approaches to vending machines and laundry rooms are among the areas that should be property illuminated, he says.

"Failure to provide adequate lighting in these public facilities can lead to serious personal injuries and be an open invitation to muggers and thieves to lurk in a darkened corner, waiting to prey on unsuspecting citizens."

Noting that there is ample precedence which holds a property owner liable for injuries sustained by tenants because of faulty lighting or a landlord's carelessness, Ring stresses that the meager amount of money that could be saved by cutting back on lighting is far outweighed by the time and funds that can be consumed in a lengthy liability suit.

In other words, a penny saved by landlords on the light bill could mean pounds of legal grief.

Inflation has two faces. Americans have seen only one face - the smiling countenance of the artificial well-being that has accompanied government deficits and creeping deterioration of our money. We hope the other face will never be seen in the U. S.

That face is presented in the words of a man who lived in Germany during the disastrous inflation of 1923. "Printing of federal money," he said, "was being farmed out because the state presses couldn't keep up with the job ..." Laundry baskets filled with paper money were used to pay off workers, and "As soon as somebody got his bundle, he'd rush out to buy whatever he could. Anything was more valuable than money ... Foraging in the countryside became commonplace. The railroad stations were jammed with people going out to the peasants to bargain for food ... To get out of the country -- even out of life -- became a widespread desire. Hopelessness is the word."

Inflation in Germany finally reached a point where it took 4.2 billion marks to purchase one U. S. dollar. The end came on the day Germany repudiated the mark. As the editor of U. S. News & World Reports comments, "... it was brought down to earth with a thud-- by stripping off the ciphers and revaluing the mark at 4.2 to the dollar. If you had 4 billion marks that morning, you only had 4 by sunset."

In America, the inflation breeding policies of government and continual tampering with price controls and other artificial restraints on a free market are bringing this country ever- closer to the other face of inflation.

Telling it like it is isn't popular, but we had better listen to someone else besides the spenders in government whom we continue to elect as a majority in Congress.

WHERE ROLL- BACKS AND BOYCOTTS END

Somewhere along the line it should become clear that price roll- backs, boycotts, strikes and punishment of producers are all self- defeating. When we had a meat shortage which forced prices up, strikes and boycotts, price controls and harassment of meat producers all added to the problem. We will be paying the cost of those blunders for years to come. We started getting meat when we let the producers make a living at doing what they know best: competing with each other and producing for the market. Before getting smart, we bankrupted many meat producers and lost a lot of future meat supply.

Now we have energy shortages, toilet tissue shortages, paper bag shortages, steel shortages and are hearing warnings of wheat shortages, bread shortages and milk shortages. At each new shortage somebody rushes into print or to the TV talk show with demands for punishing the producers of the commodity with investigations, harassment and price roll-backs.

Senator "Scoop" Jackson wants to punish energy producers but does nothing about price jumps in the lumber industry in his own area. Other shortsighed politicians want to punish the steel producers and the paper product companies, just so long as the subject industry is in some other politician's constituency.

The only solution is to protect the producers from stupid policies and turn them loose to produce and compete. Where boycotts, roll- backs and harassment end, production begins. It is a good lesson we should learn, before we suffer shortages from which we cannot recover. Putting people to productive work solves shortages. Hunting scapegoats in somebody else's industry produces nothing but misery. HLH

NATIONAL DISARRAY: A PROBLEM OF NUMBERS?

America entered the 1960s in a mood of contentment with domestic affairs and confidence in international ones. The decade ended in an agony of bitterness and frustration over both.

The nation discovered poverty, confronted race, entered a war, endured a series of tragic assassinations and experienced college riots, a drug epidemic and soaring crimes rates, which had been falling through the 1950s. Any one of these phenomena, let alone all of them in combination, was enough to strain the political capabilities and social bonds of Americans.

Oceans of ink have been spilled over why and how it all happened, and the usual answers have to do with institutional and political deficiencies, neglect, racism and moral failure.

Two observers — Prof. James Q. Wilson of Harvard University's department of government and Dr. Robert L. DuPont of the Narcotics Treatment Administration in Washington, D. C. — offer a more basic reason.

The crucial years seem to have been 1962, and 1963, they write in an article,"The Sick Sixties," in Atlantic magazine. Well before the war in Vietnam had fully engaged us or the ghetto riots had absorbed us, the social bonds of family and neighborhood were beginning to come asunder.

There is no single explanation, but one fact is obvious, they say: by 1962 and 1963 there had come of age the persons born during the baby boom of the immediate post - World War II period.

In 1950, there were about 24 million persons aged 14 to 24; by 1960 that had increased to just under 27 million. But during the next 10 years, the number of young people increased by 13 million.

During just the first two years of the 1960s, we added more young people to our population than in any preceding 10 years since 1930.

The schools were among the first institutions to feel the impact. The number of dropouts began to increase. Crime rates, narcotics deaths and youthful unemployment climbed sharply.

Many of these changes, say the authors, can be attributed to the sheer numbers of young persons involved without adducing any theory about the breakdown of the family, of the church or of society.

It is possible, they suggest, that a sudden increase in the number of "risk" persons sets off an explosive increase in the amount of crime, drug addiction and welfare dependency. What were once relatively isolated and furtive acts become widespread and group - supported activities.

Heroin addiction is an example. Addiction spreads like a contagion, with one "friend" turning another on. The sudden, dramatic increase in the number of potential addicts seems to have created a self-sustaining contagion that rapidly produced a more than proportionate number of actual addicts.

At the same time, society did a number of things to nurture this reaction.

The media spread the message that a "youth culture" was being born and celebrated the cult of personal liberation. Enhanced personal mobility made it easier to carry a contagion from one group to another. Social programs designed to combat poverty brought together groups that would have been isolated. Contacts between upper-middle- class suburban youths and ghetto blacks as a result of civil rights programs increased access to the drug culture, or created the mistaken view that such a "culture" existed and was desirable.

In sum, the institutional mechanisms which could handle problems in ordinary times were suddenly swamped in the 1960s.

The authors offer one consolation: what we went through, in that decade is not likely to happen again.

THE PRESIDENT HAS NO PEERS

William Safire, a former speech writer for President Nixon and now a columnist for the New York Times, recently examined several of the most frequently given reasons for demanding that the President resign, and found them wanting.

Among them was the objection that as long as Mr. Nixon remains president, the investigation of his administration will be impeded.

To which Safire replied:

"Of course it will. The President is the target of a grand jury and he can be expected to do what he can to defend himself...

"Face it: Mr. Nixon stands accused, and he will co-operate as little as he must in the prosecution of himself, which under our system, is the right of the accused...

"If his accusers think the President has committed impeachable crimes, they should stop blaming him for not proving it for them. They should appoint their own prosecutor, arm him with the powers of judicial and legislative branches, and make their case or hold their peace."

This is an incredible set of statements, especially from one who was so close to the occupant of the most awesome seat of power in the world.

To acknowledge that President Nixon is entitled to the full protection of the law like any other citizen, just as he surely is simiarly subject to the full penalties of the law, is not to say that he is no different from any other citizen.

He is the President. He has no peer, no counterpart in the United States. There is no officer like him in our government. He is one of the most important men in the world.

He is not an appointed official, subject to dismissal by his superior. He is not an alderman, a mayor, a governor of one of 50 states. He is not a representative or senator, who long ago might have been censured and expelled from Congress by his colleagues.

If the President were anything less than the President, the Watergate scandal would not have assumed the historically and constitutionally prodigious proportions that it did in the first place.

To suggest that the man who faced a crisis with the Soviet Union over the Middle East, the man who in the last extremity pushes the button, the man who has immense power over the lives and welfare of millions of human beings in peace or in war — to suggest that this man is not to be held to a standard of accountability vastly different from that of any ordinary citizen would be ridiculous were it not so frightening.

To suggest that President Nixon may in good conscience watch the nation tear itself apart over Watergate, may benignly contemplate the paralysis of the executive branch, while he exercises his right not to co-operate in the prosecution of himself (why wouldn't it be the exonoration of himself?) is almost incomprehensible.

AGRIBUSINESS IS KEY SOLUTION TO WORLD FOOD SUPPLY

Henry J. Heinz, chairman of the board, H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., has praised the recent stides by agricultural scientists who are revolutionizing man's ability to improve the quality and quantity of his food supply.

He explained that greatly increased harvests have brought growers problems they are not equipped to solve. To translate those harvests into effective means for feeding the world's growing population, he said, will require "the useful role that agribusiness companies can perform ... Our industry has developed technologies which can be put into action once an agricultural area reaches the point of producing more food than it consumes from day to day."

One instrument for making these technologies available is The Agribusiness Council, a nonprofit organization of which Mr. Heinz has been chairman since its inception in 1967. The Council works to match the needs of developing countries with the capabilities and interests of companies, and encourages companies to become active in those developing countries with favorable investment climates.

Mr. Heinz announced the planning of an international conference on agribusiness in Europe in 1974. "If we are successful," he said, "perhaps we can push the food story off the front pages of our newspapers and back to the home economics section, where it belongs."

Jewish Community Angered:

Atty. Gen. Saxbe's Stereotype Description of Jews Stirs Wide Demand for His Resignation

WASHINGTON-- Certainly Atty. Gen. William Saxbe isn't guilty of anti- Semitism regardless of what he has just said about "the Jewish intellectual" being "enamored of the Communist party" in the past. As the nation's top government attorney and law enforcement executive, he's guilty of another provocative crime-- he just didn't do his homework. This, neither President Nixon nor the country itself can afford.

Bill Saxbe used the stereotype totalitarian description of Jewish intellectuals on Wednesday. The anguish in leading Jewish communities was deep. The wires hummed. The Deputy Attorney General Larry Silberman, Jewish, the 34th American to hold this post, hit the phones. Brilliantly he made his points.

Then compounding and confounding it all, Saxbe shifted mental gears. By way of apology he said what he meant was Jewish intellectuals now are anti- Communist because the Soviet Union has shifted its position. Further, said he in effect, the battles against the Communists in the late '40s and early '50s were witch hunts and anti- Semitic at that.

Does this mean that those who fought the Communists because they were the allies of Nazi Germany and the hangmen of all decency were witch hunters and anti-Semites?

Well, for Bill Saxbe's information, it was the Jewish community--which first swung into the fight against American Bolshevism-- and I mean that in the full intellectual sense. It was the Jewish Daily Forward, edited by the late great, bilingual, muckraking journalist Abraham Cahan, which fought first and hardest and still is in the battle.

Let anyone go into closed archives and they will find that it was the Dave Dubinskys and Lou Stulbergs of the International Ladies' Garment Workers union which fought the Stalinists before the big war and actually saved Europe from Communism after the conflict.

It was the garment workers union which swung the ponderous AFL into the battle in the late '30s. And after World War II it was the needle workers who created the political weaponry for the fight inside Europe, in West Berlin, in West Germany, in a decrepit France and in splintered Italy, and so beat back the Communist underworld goons and waterfront squads.

And it is the team of AFL-CIO president George Meany and Jay Lovestone, his devoted and dedicated director of the International Affairs Dept. of the AFL- CIO, who have done more damage to world communism in general and the Soviet Union in particular than any other global force.

Jay Lovestone probably is the nation's most experienced and sophisticated anti-Communist, though it must be understood that Meany makes policy.

Jay is an uncompromising intellectual, a pragmatist who doesn't agitate himself over pseudo- detentes. He knows what happened to the detente with V. I. Lenin of the early '20s, called by the burgeoning Soviets the "NEP"-- New Economic Policy.

War came from that. Death came from that. The Stalinist support of Adolf Hitler came from that. Gas chambers came from that. And from that came what some call the "Cold War" but what actually is the steady, the contiguous development of Secretary Brezhnev's stalag slave- labor encroachment on much of the world.

And from that may yet come the earth's first thermonuclear war-- a Soviet invasion of mainland China.

As for Jewish intellectuals--they were the earliest to fight and are among the few who still battle world Communism and the American Communist party and its patron state, the Moscow- based Communist international. These intellectuals were-- and are-- the sophisticates of this ideological war. Some spring swiftly to mind: the delightful Morrie Ryskind, Pulitzer Prize winner for "Of Thee I Sing"; author Isaac Don Levine. The late George Sokolsky, a columnist, who advised the late J. Edgar Hoover and many of his colleagues. And younger men-- fabulous Irving Kristol, Danny Bell (then of Fortune magazine), Leo Cherne of the Research Institute, dramatist Sidney Kingsley, Mel Lasky who edited two amazingly effective anti- Communist intellectual magazines, one in Germany and the other in London, after the war. I could list a hundred. They were and are the infighters.

And what of Alger Hiss, charged with betraying our nation as a spy? He was not Jewish. The man who exposed him was-- the late Ben Mandel, of the House Committee on Un- American Activities. Today's political history would be quite different if not for Ben.

Further, Communist party leaders were not Jewish. Nor are they. Bill Saxbe is confused or uninformed. Those he has just hurt need no more wounds. They have suffered enough at the hands of the Soviet propaganda and "disinformation" apparatus.

Jewish Labor Committee president Jack Sheinkman, suggests that Saxbe resign. For the moment that's a bit drastic. Perhaps a correspondence course in elementary tolerance, political history and rap sessions with the old delicatessen crowd could straighten out all this. And with a Cabinet member like Saxbe, Dick Nixon needs no enemies.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Kissinger, Schlesinger Clash Over Detente

WASHINGTON-- Inside the secret policy councils, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger have collided head- on over concessions to Russia.

Kissinger came back from Moscow without the "conceptual breakthrough" he had sought in the strategic arms limitation talks. Now he is pleading behind closed doors for U. S. concessions to keep the detente going.

Sources privy to the secret debate say Kissinger and Schlesinger bitterly disagree over the strategic importance of the heavier missiles Russia is developing. Once these missiles are deployed, each Soviet missile will be able to hurl more warheads than its U. S. counterpart.

Schlesinger contends that the SALT agreement, therefore, must restrict not only the numbers of missiles but their throw- weight. Otherwise, the Soviets will wind up with a 6- to- 1 nuclear superiority, he warns.

This is disputed by Kissinger who insists that concessions can be granted without upsetting the nuclear arms balance. He points out that the Administration has been unable to persuade Congress to remove the trade discrimination against Russia. Now the United States, having originally accepted the principal of restricting only the numbers of missiles, is demanding that the throw-weight also be controlled.

We cannot "thwart" the Soviets from achieving "everything" they sought from the detente, Kissinger has pleaded. He stresses that the detente has made it possible for the United States to pull out of Vietnam, stop construction of a Soviet base in Cuba and reduce tensions in the Middle East.

President Nixon agrees with Kissinger that the detente "has served us far more than it has served them," as one source recalls the President's remarks at a secret session.

Our source quotes the President as acknowledging that our domination of the Middle East peace negotiations has not created a "happy situation" for the Kremlin. Yet the President noted that Soviet leaders have acted "with restraint" and have avoided inflammatory propaganda.

Nevertheless, the President doesn't want to risk giving Russia a nuclear edge, which the Soviets might use for political leverage.

MULTIMILLION PROBE: The Pentagon's $500- million-a- year CHAMPUS health insurance program is under investigation by Senate probers who fear its worthy aims have been corrupted by mismanagement and fraud.

CHAMPUS stands for Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services. It pays much of the health care at civilian facilities for some six million military dependents and retired GIs.

For weeks, gumshoes from the Senate Investigations subcommittee have been visiting CHAMPUS headquarters in Denver, poring over Pentagon records and interrogating the private firms that handle CHAMPUS contract insuring.

The importance of the study is indicated by the fact that Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Charles Percy, R-Ill., have diverted senior investigators from their vital fuel crisis study to looking into CHAMPUS.

So far, the subcommittee has not been able to nail down absolute proof of fraud. But they have found some negligence and mismanagement in the huge insurance program. One of America's biggest insurers has been the object of special scrutiny by the subcommittee, we have learned.

At the subcommittee, tight-lipped spokesmen confirmed only that the probe was busily going on. Hearings are not expected for months and even a staff report is not yet drafted.

FOOTNOTE: In Denver, a spokesman said CHAMPUS has "been cooperating fully" with the Senate probers. It's "entirely possible" that some fraud may exist in a program as large as CHAMPUS, he conceded. But he said the program is sound, contract monitoring is constant and "we'd be surprised if anything is seriously wrong."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: We recently reported that many reductions in wholesale food costs weren't being passed on to the consumers. The information from Agriculture Department files mistakenly listed Marcor as owner of Jewel, and General Host as owner of Swift Meats. We apologize to both companies for not double-checking...Attorney General William Saxbe, who was a strong advocate of the people's right to know when he was a senator, has assigned a lobbyist to fight an amendment that would strengthen the Freedom of Information Act. The lobbyist is Robert Saloschin, who himself once promoted more freedom for reporters. Now he is trying to curtail the freedom amendment...Spec. 4 Robert Donley, a decorated Army reporter, was fired as editor of his Yongsan, South Korea, base newspaper after Col. King Coffman, the garrison commander, found an article on prostitution "distasteful." Coffman declined comment when we reached him in South Korea. Shortly after our call, however, the Army quietly gave Donley a job with armed forces radio.

Senate committee approves House unemployment pay bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A House bill to eliminate the waiting week before a person can receive unemployment benefits has cleared the Senate Labor and Management Relations Committee.

It was approved 5-3 Monday night.

Under law, a person does not get paid for the first week of unemployment until he has been out of work for nine weeks.

Under the bill, sponsored by Rep. Earl Schleft, D-Dellwood, a person would get paid at the same time he now gets paid, which is 14 days after he is put out of work. However, instead of getting paid only for the second week, he would get paid for two weeks' unemployment benefits.

The bill is supported by various labor interests and is opposed by some businessmen and the state Chamber of Commerce.

Jerry Tucker, political coordinator for the United Auto Workers in St. Louis, said, "We do not view it exclusively as an organized labor bill. The waiting week now discriminates against the workers as a class."

Joseph Dietrich, assistant director of employment security for the state, said the state's unemployment insurance trust fund is at $215 million and is drawing $11.5 million in interest a year.

TAKING OVER A LOAN

VA loans are partially guaranteed by the Veterans Administration and hence, like FHA loans, involve less risk for the lenders than conventional loans and carry lower interest rates. Many low-interest VA loans have been made with little or no down payment, which makes them real bargains to assume when buying a home financed in this manner.

A veteran can now normally transfer a GI loan with no strings attached if the VA approves the new owner's credit, and the new owner assumes the veteran's loan obligation.

But there are legalities to observe and pitfalls to avoid. For example, shifting the debt to the new owner doesn't automatically erase the seller's responsibility for repayment of the loan in case of default. But this can be arranged with just a little extra effort. In these matters, it's wise to have the professional guidance of a Realtor and lawyer.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Mitchell is Past President of the Sikeston Board of Realtors and is currently serving as Vice- President of the Missouri Association of Realtors.)

Susan Knauer is March bride of Gary W. Smith

Marriage vows uniting Miss Susan Arlene Knauer and Gary Wayne Smith were solemnized at 3 p.m. March 16 in the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell P.Knauer of Sikeston, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Smith of St. Louis.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight organza over satapeau. English lace adorned the yoke, cuffs and hemline. The bishop sleeves formed a wide cuff which came to a point on the back of her hands. The dress also featured an empire waistline.

The bride wore a mantilla veil attached to a contoured cap. It was encircled with a band of English lace. The bride carried a lace fan covered with delicate yellow roses.

Miss Lori Jo Neiman of Valley Forge, Pa., was maid of honor, Miss Rebacah Jean Barnes of Sikeston was bridesmaid and Andrea Fults of Sikeston was flower girl.

John Pinkley of St. Louis served as best man. John Balsiger of St. Louis was groomsman, and Timothy Thornton of Sikeston and Kenneth Smith of St. Louis were ushers.

Mrs. Jim Graham of Sikeston presided at the guestbook, and John Netler was in charge of music arrangements.

Following a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the newlyweds are living in St. Louis where Smith is employed by Federal Express Airlines.

Ann Landers

College night owl should use ear plugs; change roommates

Dear Ann Landers: You have spoken up in behalf of waitresses, telephone operators, cab drivers, non-smokers, etc. And now will you please say a kind word for college students who like to sleep in the morning?

I'm a night person and always have been. I don't come alive until 11:00 a.m. I scheduled my classes so I could sleep late because it is sheer torture for me to get up in the morning.

I live in a dorm and that's the rub. Some people around here pop out of bed at the crack of dawn. They think it's their God- given right to awaken the rest of the world. Then there's another problem. Every morning this week the goldarned phone has jarred me out of a sound sleep at 8:00 a.m. At that miserable hour, everyone else is in class or asleep. Since my room is closest to the phone I have to crawl out of bed and talk to some dizzy dame who is looking for a babysitter or struggling with some other earth- shattering problem.

If this letter makes your column I promise you it will be tacked to hundreds of college bulletin boards from Maine to California and I, personally, will have it framed for our dorm.-- X- hausted

Dear X: I'm glad you didn't ask for a solution to the problem, because I don't have one. Earplugs might help some but until you can move out and share quarters with a couple of other night owls, you'll have to put up with the agony, Bub.

Dear Ann Landers: Once again you not so subtly promote the idea that withholding sex is a smart way to get a husband. Maybe so, but isn't that deceitful? I'd hate to think the only reason a man married me was because he had to or I wouldn't go to bed with him.

Please don't assume I'm in favor of promiscuity. I'm not. But a woman's decision to bed or not to bed should be based on a better reason than snagging a wedding ring.

Prostitution is the trading of sex for money. The girl who holds out for marriage is actually selling herself for a furnished apartment or a split-level home, plus a ring on her finger and a piece of paper she'll never look at again. Big deal. I know a cutie- pie who followed that formula-- "no marriage, no sex"-- and then it was "no new dress, no sex," and finally, "I get my way or no sex." She said it worked every time-- bragged about it-- but I'd hate like hell to have a marriage based on such outrageous blackmail.

As far as I'm concerned, the honest female agrees to go to bed with a man because she wants to. And if she refuses, it should be because she DOESN'T want to.-- Outspoken

Dear Out: You say you're not in favor of promiscuity, but if a girl wants to-- nine times in two weeks, with eight different fellows-- that, in my book, makes her pretty darned promiscuous.

I am not suggesting that if a girl doesn't save her virginity for the man she marries she's a tramp, but I've received stacks of letters from heartsick dames who were dropped by men they were really crazy about and they admit very frankly, "Everything was beautiful until I went to bed with him. From then on he treated me differently. The magic was gone. I'd give anything if I could turn our relationship back to where it was before I did that foolish thing."

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 35c in coin to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Talking is important to children

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economists

Mothers of preschool children are often heard to complain that their lives are dull because they have no one to talk with but children. Attitudes might be different if mothers realized the importance of this "talk". Language is necessary if the child is to progress to complicated levels of thinking.

Some experts say that early language learning depends a great deal on how much parents talk with their children. Evidence was found in Head Start studies that language development of disadvantaged children is generally below that of middle class children Although differences in verbal interaction patterns of people are recognized, researchers are not certain which factors within the home setting cause these differences.

Increased understanding of home conditions which help develop the child's language could lead to improved communication between mothers and young children. In turn, verbal skills, so important to success in school and later life, could be improved.

With these ideas in mind, Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center studied "talking patterns" of 4-year-olds and their mothers. They found that as there were children in the same room, mothers and child tended to talk and interact less.

How do you communicate with a young child? At the heart of good communication is a sharing of experiences and thoughts.

If the children are helped to share their thoughts, they feel they are worthwhile. You can do this also by letting them know they are special for their own sake. Ask them to do things they can do best and praise them for what they do well. You can always talk with children about their efforts, even if he didn't do a perfect job.

In a given day, you can only talk or interact with your small child so much. Children need to know words and have a chance to use them if they are to learn communication. They need to know the meaning of what they see hear, touch, taste, and smell. Talk to them as you work around the home, but remember to communicate also means to listen. Get down on their level, look them in the eye and listen. It was once said we have one mouth and 2 ears, so we should listen twice as much as we talk. With preschoolers and children of any age, both are vital.

You, as parents, set the stage for communicating effectively and each home consists of different actors and scenes. Reading your child's cues will guarantee good communication and feelings for all.

Coaches of the Year

Larry Warren of Lilbourn (left) and William Wilthong of Illmo-Scott City were singled out by The Daily Standard sports panel of coaches for their outstanding job of coaching during the 1973-74 school year. Warren led LHS into the championship of the Class AA state basketball tournament and Wilthong coached his Rams to their second straight undefeated gridiron season. It was the eighth annual basketball coach of the year award and marked the fifth annual football presentation.

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Pete Mara, of the Des Moines Capitols, Monday was awarded the Gatschene Trophy, as the most valuable player in the International Hockey League.

Mara led the IHL in total points with 115, and his 71 assists made him the league's top playmaker.

Eighth annual team selections

The Daily Standard officially brings down the curtain on the 1973-74 Southeast Missouri high school basketball season with the announcement of its eighth annual "Dream Team" selections made by the DS sports panel of coaches.

A total of 79 schools submitted nominations for the teams and the list of over 118 names was narrowed to 15. Among this group are all-staters Andy Smelser of Risco; Roy Bowman of Sikeston; Jeff Jackson of Kelly; Frankie Robinson of Libourn; Stan Ray of Cape Central and Louis Lucas of Bismarck.

The papers all-academic team will be announced Wednesday.

ALL-STAR

DAVID TROPF — David used his 6-foot-6 frame to help lead the Advance Hornet's of coach Carroll Cookson to fourth place in the class A state tournament this past season and as a junior is looking forward to next season with great enthusiasm. David surprised most people with his ability to hit from the 10-15 foot range and with his free throw shooting ability. He scored 570 points in 30 games for the Hornets for a 17 point per game clip. He pulled down 510 rebounds. David had a high game of 32 points and 25 rebounds in one contest.

RON OLLER — This 5-foot-9 guard- forward was one of the area's best shooters. Ron led the Advance Hornets in scoring with an 18 point per game average. Ron twice scored 43 points in a game as a junior this season. When allowed to shoot from either corner Ron can pop the nets at a fantastic percentage. He and Davif Tropf give coach Cookson the neucleus of another state class A finalists in 1975.

ARMOND PORTER — Armond has led the Matthews Pirates in rebounding and has averaged in double figures for the past two seasons. At 6-2 he is a good jumper and a deadly shooter from inside the free throw circle area. He works hard on the boards and frequently gets the second shot off the offensive boards. Armond was named to The Daily Standard all-academic team in his junior year as well as repeating the feat this season.

LEON JOHNSON — Leon was the big man for coach Terry Tomlinson's Neelyville Tigers for the past two seasons. At 6-5 Leon led the Tigers in scoring with 416 points in 22 games with a season game high of 31. He grabbed off 263 rebounds with a game high of 20. He led the Tigers to first place in the Bloomfield Christmas tournament and the Poplar Bluff Invitational championship.

ROLLY PERKINS — At 6-foot-1 Rolly can jump with anyone in the area and has been instrumental in leading coach Mark Rascher's Parma Pirates into the state tournament two consecutive years, class S in 1973 and class A in 1974. Rolly averaged 15 points a game in 20 contests this season and 15 rebounds per game. His game high of points scored was 32.

CARSON KELLY — Carson is undoubtedly one of the top basketball players in the state. At 6-foot-1 he possesses tremendous jumping ability. Carson was the man to whom coach Dan Kight of the Delta Bobcats turned to when he needed some scoring as Kelly scored 360 points in 22 games for the Bobcats as well as leading the team in rebounds with 303. Carson's high game in points scored was 31 and his rebound top game was 25. His hard work through the entire game made him the ball player he was.

ANDY SMELSER — This 6-foot-1 junior guard was the Risco Tiger's mister everything. Andy scored 360 points in 20 games for coach Stan Whitson's Tigers with a single game high of 34. Andy had a game average of 18.4 points and averaged 11 assists per game. He pulled down an average of seven rebounds a game while shooting at a 51.3 per cent clip from the floor and 86 per cent from the free throw line. Andy was name to The Daily Stnadard all-academic team as a sophomore and repeats this year. He received the honor of being named to the all-state team this season and is already being scouted by a few colleges.

STAN RAY — At 6-9 Stan was easily the tallest man on the all star team. As a junior center he scored 354 points in 19 games this season with a 28 point production for a game high. Stan was named to the all state class AAAA team this season and is looking forward to an even bigger season in 1974-75.

OWEN SUGGS — The second Cape Central Tiger to make the all star team along with Stan Ray for coachDan Milligan. Owen stands at 6-6 and is a fine shooter from the outside range. Suggs gave the Tigers a deadly one-two punch in scoring and rebounding which led them into quarter - final round play in the class AAAA state before bowing out to St. Louis Central.

JEFF JACKSON — Jeff is the only repeater on the all star team as he was the only underclassman to make the team last season. Jeff's basketball feats are almost numberless as he has been named to all the all star teams his last two years at Kelly high school. Jeff was the Hawks team leader the last two seasons as the 6-foot-2 senior forward led coach Nick Lanpher's Hawks into the state tournament for the past two seasons. Jeff has averaged around 19 points per game for the past two seasons and has been the team's leading rebounder. His career ended on a high note this season with the selection to the class AA all state team.

FRANKIE ROBINSON — At 6-foot-1 this flashy sophomore has nothing but brightness to look forward to in the future for the Lilbourn Panthers. Frankie was coach Larry Warren's leading scorer this past season with an 18 point per game average and pulled down seven rebounds a game from his forward position. Frankie became the first sophomore to make the all-state team in any class in the history of the team. If Frankie continues to improve over the next two seasons as he did between his freshman and sophomore year he could possibly be put in the same class as Jo Jo White of St. Louis, Win Wilfong of Puxico, and Bill Bradley of Crystal City and John Brown of Dixon.

KENNY BRIGHT — Kenny was the tallest man on coach Ronnie Cookson's Scott Central Braves' team this season as the 6-foot-1 jumping back led the Braves in rebounds and blocked shots. Kenny averaged in double figures this season and has been a starter for the past two seasons. Coach Cookson hopes to surround Bright with a few good shooters next season.

CLAUDE MCFERREN — Claude was one of a two brother guard combination that helped lead the Liblourn Panthers to the state class AA championship this season. Claude had a deadly shot from the 20 foot range and was exceptionally quick as the 5-foot-9 guard concentrated on defense more than offense this season. He averaged about 10 points a game for coach Larry Warren's Panthers.

ROY BOWMAN — At 6-foot-1 Roy was the leading basketball player for coach N. P. McDaniels Sikeston Bulldogs this past season as a senior. Roy was an outstanding player in his junior year but was overshadowed by Pope Hunt. Roy can do just about anything on a basketball court. He can handle the ball in a press and shoot from the 20 foot range and play defense. He averaged 18.4 points a game with a shooting percentage of 67 from the field. Roy was named to the class AAAA all-state team this season. Roy was also the area's top middle linebacker on the football team and is tops in his senior class in the academic department being named to The Daily Standard all-academic team for the past two seasons.

LOUIE LUCAS — Louie was the outstanding shooter in the entire Mineral Area Activities Association conference averaging above 20 points per game. He possessed the quick jump shot which is so difficult to defense. Louie was named to the Class A all-state team this season to cap a fine high school career. He averaged 28 points per game as a junior and 30 as a senior. His fieldgoal average was 55.5 as a junior and 52 per cent his senior season. He averaged 10 rebounds a game.

Aaron hit fastball for 715th

ATLANTA (AP) — Al Downing vanished quickly into the Atlanta night, leaving but a brief tape-recorded message in his wake after surrendering the historic shot.

"I don't know where he is," said Los Angeles Manager Walter Alston. "He's probably going to get something to eat then go back to the hotel."

But the 32-year-old journeyman pitcher of 13 major league seasons did tape a brief interview shortly after he was knocked out of the box in the fourth inning when Aaron connected for his 715th homer.

The two-run homer keyed a four-run inning as the Braves went on to a 7-4 victory before a record Atlanta Stadium crowd of 53,775 and a national television audience. The home run, on a 1-0 pitch, came at 9:07 p.m. EDT.

Downing, who went into the dugout during the respite, promptly walked the next two batters and was removed from the contest.

"It was a fast ball, right down the middle of the upper part of the plate," he said of the blast.

"I was trying to get it down to him but I didn't get it down, and he hit it good, as he would. I didn't have good control, when I got behind him, I was just trying to get the ball up. It didn't bother me though."

Joe Ferguson, the Dodgers catcher, said he asked Aaron his first time up if he could concentrate and Aaron replied, "Not too good."

But he certainly did his second time up after drawing a walk in his first plate appearance.

The pitch landed in Atlanta relief pitcher Tom House's glove after it cleared the leftcenter field fence.

"That's the highlight of my career," said House. "It's something I can tell my grandchildren when I get old."

Bill Buckner, the Dodger leftfielder who made an acrobatic leap which fell some 20 feet short, said in admiration of Aaron:

"It seems like he can hit a home run anytime he wants to. The only thing that brightened up the game was Henry's home run. The noise from the crowd was super loud. It was the loudest applause I've ever heard."

"Every time he hits another homer, he'll be setting a new record," said Braves Manager Eddie Mathews.

"The first chance he got he did it. Boom. All the hubbub and he did it the first time he swung. Just like he hit 714 in Cincinnati."

Massie to retire after 28 years

JEFFERSON CITY — Gerald R. Massie, assistant director, Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development has announced his retirement from state government effective April 30.

Massie, 62, has been with the state since 1945 when he was first employed by the old Division of Resources and Development, the forerunner of the present Division of Commerce.

In his more than 28 years with the division he has served as acting director three times in addition to serving as director of the Industrial, Tourism, Information and Museum sections.

Massie is best known for his photographic work which began at the age of 10 in Clinton, when he won his first Brownie box camera in a bicycle race.

During World War II Massie served five years in the European Theatre as a photographer with the United States Air Force. Since that time he has become a nationally known photographer and has had the familiar "Photo by Massie" in virtually every encyclopedia published in America. His work has also appeared in the New York Times, National Geographic and numerous other national and international journals.

Massie has been the Official State Photographer for more than 20 years and became a member of the Missouri Academy of Squires in 1961. He is also a member of Sigma Delta Chi, a national professional journalism fraternity.

PRINZ TEARS ACHILLES TENDON

This injury is generally considered to be the most serious to a ballet dancer.

His physicians believe that the surgery to reconnect the severed tendon was successful. They have outlined several months of intense physical therapy to enable Prinz to regain use of his left foot and leg.

Prinz, a native of Chicago, joined American Ballet Theater in 1970 after spending six years with the New York City Ballet, where he was also a principal dancer.

What's the law?

The case of the devilish minister

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The Rev. Hoople carried out his ministerial duties with a decided air of despair. And he did so with good reason. His parish was so poor it couldn't even support the proverbial country church house let alone the despondent Reverend. In fact, after a while, he found that most of his praying was for his back salary. When it wasn't forthcoming, he finally stopped praying and demanded his money in court.

"I haven't been paid in six months," he informed the judge.

"And, since the only assets possessed by the church is the church itself, I demand that it be ordered sold immediately so that I can be paid."

"Only the devil himself would demand that a church be sold," responded the horrified parishioners. "Without a church, we could lose our way to the Pearly Gates and that would be terrible."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the sale of the church so that the Rev. Hoople could be paid?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while it might be an "energetic" measure to take, a church may be sold to pay its debts where there are no assets out of which to pay those debts. And, concluded the judge, wages owed to a minister is a debt for which the church may be sold.

Judiciary committee awaits answer on request for tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee is waiting for a promised reply from the White House to its request for tapes of 42 presidential conversations.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., has scheduled a committee meeting for Wednesday or Thursday to deal with the question of a subpoena if today's reply is unsatisfactory.

In a letter released by Rodino Monday, James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's chief impeachment lawyer, said that despite progress in recent weeks the dispute has not been resolved.

He indicated the White House is not prepared to surrender all 42 presidential conversations the committee wants and requested Feb. 25.

The committee last week set a deadline of today for a yes or no answer from the White House as to whether it will give up the tapes.

There is a possibility that partial compliance by the White House will be sufficient to head off the confrontation a subpoena would produce.

Committee Counsel John Doar disclosed last week that the committee is willing to accept initially only those tapes St. Clair says are relevant to the impeachment inquiry. But the committee would retain the right to demand all the tapes it originally requested.

Rodino is also being put under pressure by some Republican members to permit a vote this week on the procedures the committee will follow in handling the evidence gathered by the impeachment staff.

Rodino and Doar would like to keep the procedure flexible until the documentary evidence has been presented, but Republicans are demanding that the right of St. Clair to be present during the presentation be settled now.

Rodino said the staff is having a hard time drafting the procedures and that they would not be ready for consideration until the second week after the Easter recess. A major problem, he said, is devising a means of protecting the confidentiality of the evidence during its presentation.

Bluff firm gets Bernie contract

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Apparent low bids on three state projects were opened Friday.

The only bidder on repairs and replacements to the National Guard Armory, Bernie, was Smith and Livingston, Poplar Bluff, at $6,250.

At $7,641.79, Patton Plumbing, Heating and Cooling, Portageville, was the apparent low bidder on repairs and replacements to the National Guard Armory in Portageville.

School gas supply cut off

STOVER, Mo. (AP) — The Stover school was closed Friday because the Missouri Utilities Co. has turned off the supply of natural gas to heat the buildings.

Merrell Taylor, superintendent of the kindergarten through 12th grade school of 700 pupils, said "It was quite cold."

The Missouri Utilities Co. has run short of natural gas. The Stover school has no standby heating system.

The Versailles schools, which also had their natural gas supply cut off, remained open using standby LP gas units.

Rejuvenated plan will pump $225 million to rural areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A rejuvenated federal conservation program called REAP, once terminated by a budget-conscious Nixon administration, will pump $225.5 million back into rural areas as payments to farmers for projects they carried out last year.

The Agriculture Department announced Monday that REAP — the Rural Environmental Assistance Program — will be opened to the full $225.5 million authorized by Congress.

Officials conceded that the full REAP allocation was the result of a U.S. District Court decision late last year which ordered the 1973 plan be put back into effect.

The conservation payments were set up by Congress in 1936 under the title, Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP), and continued basically unchanged for many years.

Over the years many attempts were made to reduce or change the popular program, but each time Congress intervened to restore funds and keep the basic cost-sharing goals intact.

Congress set the 1973 program — by then changed to REAP — at $225.5 million, but the USDA announced it would be held to $140 million. Then, in December 1972, the department suspended REAP entirely for 1973 after spending or committing only $12 million to $15 million of its announced budget.

The court decision overturned the termination order, and last month USDA announced the program would be reopened so farmers could be paid for undertaking approved projects last year. At the time, officials indicated the $140 million originally set by the department would be spent.

However, in Monday's announcement offocials noted the court decision and added that it was interpreted to mean the full $225.5 million authorized by Congress for 1973 REAP operations. Thus, $85.5 million more than the original spending level will be available to farmers.

The increase to $225.5 million means payments for 1973 REAP could total the most under the program since 1961 when those totaled $230 million, according to department records.

Meantime, the department has set up a streamlined program for 1974 called the Rural Environmental Conservation Program—RECP—with a budget of $90 million. Congress had authorized $175 million for it.

Motorists urged to beware of gasoline saving gadgets

"Save up to 2 gallons of gas every hour you're on the highway!"

"Burn water in your car...up to 5 more miles per gallon."

"Amazing new ignition activator...multiplies spark to give... better gas mileage."

Those claims for three devices advertised in an automotive parts catalog are typical of the benefits promised motorists by companies that sell so-called gas savers.

In a time of shortages and higher gasoline prices, promoters of such devices appear to have increased their sales efforts in some states. But do the gadgets really deliver?

"I don't know of anything that motorists can attach that will improve their mileage a significant amount," says automotive engineer Bob Knoll, head of Consumers Union's auto test division.

The Pennsylvania Bureau of Consumer Protection has issued a general warning to motorists to be wary of claims that various gadgets will improve gas mileage.

And state attorneys general in California, Arkansas, Kansas and Minnesota have looked into the advertising of various manufacturers. In some cases they have taken or threatened legal action over the claims.

Particularly popular among manufacturers this year are devices that mix water with the gasoline.

A shop near Albany, N.Y., reported installing about 300 such devices which it guarantees will increase a car's mileage from 1.4 to 5 miles per gallon. It costs $49.50 plus $20 installation.

"They're going like gangbusters," said a spokesman for the shop.

A spokesman for General Motors, however, said its engineers "know of no fuel economy benefits from water injection."

Water injection was used in some World War II fighter planes, but the purpose was to prevent preignition under heavy loads and not to obtain economy, the GM spokesman said.

Abortion regulation measure raises constitutional arguments

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Senate Criminal Justice Committee sent to the floor of the Senate today an abortion regulation measure which prevoked extensive debate in the House.

The bill, approved after a hearing Monday night, places limitations on abortions in the first three months of pregnancy and adds one additional requirement during the second and third three-month periods.

Constitutional arguments were raised in the House and at the committee hearing a St. Louis attorney cited a number of provisions of the bill he felt could be in conflict with the constitution.

A number of physicians testifying on the bill cited dangers of abortion and scientific evidence they said indicated that a fetus can feel pain as early as eight weeks after conception.

Strawberry Festival crafts show to have new look

DEXTER — The Arts and Crafts portion of the annual Strawberry Festival planned here May 20-25 will be under the direction of Bob Brison, local elementary school principal.

Brison spoke briefly at the retail merchants meeting held last week and asked for suggestions and ideas in making this year's event "bigger and better".

One major change in the arts and crafts events was the decision to make it an outdoor festival to the held the weekend of May 24-25 at the West City Park.

Brison outlined plans to include artists from a wide area and also stressed the importance of including "young and old and every type of craft from painting to quilting."

He asked that the merchants assist in the event in several phases of planning and working at the festival and received a pledge of help from individuals in the organization.

Brison urges that any individual planning to enter the festival contact him or Mrs. Mary Ellen Blankenship at the Chamber of Commerce office and tell the type of art to be exhibited.

"We are interested in all types of art and crafts and if you know of someone who would attend the festival and bring their work, please pass his or her name along to us so they can be contacted as soon as possible," he added.

Many cities throughout the Midwest are turning to outdoor arts and crafts festivals and the popularity of this type of informal event draws hundreds of people, it was pointed out.

With the help of many people in the community, Dexter can also have this type of show as a focal point of the upcoming Strawberry Festival, Brison said.

Children Lit. class planned

PORTAGEVILLE — The University of Missouri proposes to offer a two-hour credit course, E196 Children's Literature, as a concentrated offering scheduled to begin May 28 at 4 p.m. in the Delta Center Portageville.

The course will meet four hours per day May 29, 30, 31 and June 3, 4, 5 and 6. If the hour of 4 p.m. is not agreeable with the majority of the participants, a vote may be taken during the first session to change the schedule to a more convenient time.

The course fulfills one of the requirements for state certification of elementary teachers. It is also required for librarians and nurses.

Barge worker reported in fair condition

CAPE GIRARDEAU--George Urhahn, 47, of Oran was reported in fair condition this morning at Southeast Missouri Hospital, where he was taken after becoming ill Monday on a barge about five miles north of Cape Girardeau.

Urhahn, who has a history of diabetes, became extremely ill about 2:30 p.m. while working on the C. H. McMillan barge. His co-workers waved down a yacht owned by Ed Riley and transported Urhahn to the yacht. The Cape County Ambulance Service awaited the yacht at Huckstep Boat Dock in Cape Girardeau.

The Cape Girardeau fire department was also called to the Huckstep Boat Dock when a gas truck overturned prior to Urhahn's arrival at the dock.

Norbert Schlegel of Cape Girardeau parked his truck on a hill and went into the Huckstep office to inquire about the Urhahn incident after he was asked by the ambulance driver where he should park.

The truck rolled down the hill and overturned, spilling 900 gallons of fuel. Norbert said he had pulled the emergency brake on the vehicle.

Coal comes back

property, but according to law, the deed to the property must be in the name of Mississippi County. When the health department sold the property, the court had to issue the deed to the buyer.

On Feb. 2, according to Mississippi County Treasurer Deema Atteberry, $500 in earnest money was deposited by Perry Gillispie in the county health department account toward the purchase of the property. On March 28, a check for $9,500 from Ed C. Marshall Jr. for payment of the property was also deposited in the health department account. The deed was first made to Gillispie and later to Marshall.

The house was purchased by the health department about five years ago and plans were to remodel it for offices of the department. The plan was dropped when the department purchased an office from Dr. Charles Rolwing on East Market Street.

Resolutions to make owners eligible for insurance

PORTAGEVILLE — The City Council Monday night adopted enabling resolutions to make property owners eligible for flood insurance provided by the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, according to City Clerk Raymond Secoy.

The resolutions call for enforcement of a building code ordinance for future new construction and improvements of present structures and adopting land use and control measures designed to guide future developments away from flood hazard areas.

Secoy said the street paving program was discussed and that a meeting is scheduled later this week to make final plans for additional paving, which is dependent upon agreement by 51 per cent of the property owners along certain designated streets.

The city ambulance service is expected to begin operations May 2 when attendants have completed a training course now in progress at Sikeston. Most of the required equipment has arrived or is due to arrive by that time, Secoy said.

Assessment forms are due

BENTON — Scott County Assessor William "Bill" Ferrell requests that residents who have not returned their personal property assessment sheet to his office to do so within the next two weeks.

If his office fails to receive the forms, Ferrell said it will be necessary to determine assessments from a list received from the Department of Revenue on vehicle registrations which is not always correct. "Sometimes it will list cars the owner has already sold," he remarked.

He said about 80 per cent of assessment lists have been returned to his office.

Witnesses testifying for the city of Chaffee were: Mary Frances Burnett, city clerk; Charles Cunningham, city collector; Ted Ziegler of Scott City; and Morris Welsh, a member of the City Council.

Cunningham testified his records showed that the residents had not paid their trash bill during the months of September, October and November.

"Regardless of whether the city residents pay their share of the money, the city must pay the contractor his salary," Cunningham said, adding that of each $3 fee collected $2.75 goes to the contractor.

Under cross examination, Cunningham said 1,003 homes in Chaffee are receiving collection service. He said there is a slight possibility a few citizens in Chaffee are not being billed for their trash pickups if they do not have water or sewer facilities.

Ziegler, who drives the solid waste truck for the city, said he didn't stop at some homes to pick up refuse because they did not have any trash set out.

Welsh said he had checked several times with the city collector to be sure everyone was being billed for solid waste services.

Testifying for the defense were Linden Duncan and Mrs. Frank Hobbs.

Duncan said he had never used the service provided by the city and that he had always taken his refuse to the Scott County sanitary landfill near Morley.

The attorney for the city told the jury that the city of Chaffee provides a service to the people regardless of whether they take advantage of it or not.

The defense attorney said it was a question of what was right or wrong and that if citizens did not receive service they should not have to pay for it.

Dick Beall, chairman of the ambulance committee, presented the council a check for $275 to be applied toward the purchase of a new ambulance.

The council voted to purchase a new mosquito fogging machine for $700, plus trade- in.

A special meeting of the City Council will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday to discuss a proposed one- cent city sales tax.

House kills collective bargaining plan

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment allowing public employes the right to bargain collectively was killed today by the Missouri House.

"It is an invitation to anarchy. It is something we cannot have in this society," said Republican floor leader Robert Snyder.

He objected to the proposal because it would have made the right to bargain collectively a constitutional right for public employes and would have included policemen.

The measure fell seven votes short of the necessary 82 for final passage.

Given approval and sent to the governor was a House bill providing for regulation of the qualifications of doctors. The bill has been approved by the Senate and House approval was needed for a minor amendment.

It would provide that the state Board of Healing Arts could compel a doctor to undergo a mental or physical examination to determine his fitness for practicing medicine. Failure to submit could result in suspension of his license.

In the Senate, there was little debate before approval was given to a provisions deleting from the state's "sunshine law" a section calling for the destruction of criminal records in St. Louis and Jackson counties within one year if there is no conviction in the case.

But the revised bill, which was approved Monday 32-0 and sent to the House, would still require such records to be closed to everyone except police agencies and the defendant 30 days after a judge signs the order.

Also retained was the provision closing arrest records after 30 days unless the person is officially charged with a crime. Records of convictions will remain public as in the past.

In an attempt to halt the State Agriculture Department from keeping milk pricing records secret because they may be involved in a court case, the Senate included a section prohibiting such actions on the part of public agencies.

That move is in tune with a previous Senate action declaring as a "nullity" the recent Attorney General's opinion that upheld the Agriculture Department's stance on the secrecy of the milk pricing records.

The Senate again defeated a bill to provide full state funding for Missouri Western and Missouri Southern State Colleges. The measure, sponsored by Sen. Truman Wilson, D-St. Joseph, was beaten down last week and has met opposition every since getting to the Senate floor.

A proposal banning the use of metal studded snow tires from April 1 to Nov. 1 gained final approval from the Senate Monday. But the sponsor, Sen. William Waters, D-Liberty, said he would accept a House amendment to move the spring date up to April 15.

The House also was sent a measure boosting the tax rate for Three Rivers, Mineral Area and State Fair junior college districts from 30-cents per $100 assessed valuation to 40 cents.

The House, although giving approval to two minor appropriations bills, spent most of the Monday session in lengthy and sometimes humorous debate on a bill to exempt several items from the state sales tax but took no action on the measure.

The governor was sent a bill by the Senate setting a $3 tax per new car and a $1.50 tax per used car to replace the value added property tax on car dealers. Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed a similar measure last year.

The Senate also gave approval to:

—Creation of a State Division of Training Schools to replace the Board of Training Schools while requiring that inmates be separated by offense.

Court orders 17 Chaffee citizens to pay trash bills

BENTON — After deliberating for approximately 20 minutes Monday, a Circuit Court jury awarded judgment in favor of the Chaffee City Council in a civil suit against 17 residents it charged were in violation of the city's solid waste ordinance by failing to pay a $3 per month service charge for removal of garbage. The judgment assessesed each of the 17 citizens $9 for three months of unpaid service.

Chaffee's solid waste ordinance, which became effective last September, specifies that all residents of the city must pay $3 per month for trash removal whether they use the service or not.

The ordinance was vigorously protested by a group of Chaffee residents who circulated petitions reportedly signed by more than 500 townspeople.

The attorney for the complaining residents stated that the charge is more a tax than a service charge since the residents are charged even if they do not use the service.

Residents charged in the suit included:

MissCo seeks to qualify for flood insurance

CHARLESTON — Flood plain protection for Mississippi County was discussed Monday by the County Court, which is seeking qualification of Mississippi County for flood insurance.

The court was told by W. Clifton Banta Jr. that if House bill 1366 is passed, it would not be necessary to hold an election for the purpose of establishing a county planning and zoning commission. The bill simplifies the ways a county can meet requirements which qualify it for flood insurance protection.

If the bill is defeated, the court agreed to place a proposal for establishing a Mississippi County planning and zoning commission on the August primary election ballot.

Presiding Judge Bill Winchester pointed out Monday that the court is striving to meet qualifications for flood insurance and stated that, to the court's knowledge, no surrounding county has yet qualified for flood insurance.

Approximately 35 acres of surplus land surrounding the county airport site was rented, on a crop- rent basis for this year, to the Rolwing brothers, from whom the airport property was purchased.

Representatives from the Soil and Water Conservation Department and engineers for the Missouri State Highway Department were present at Monday's meeting and bridges in the proposed watershed district, along with other drainage problems, were discussed.

The court authorized Waters and Associates, a Sikeston engineering firm, to draw up plans for the roadway into the landfill site near Commerce and submit them for state approval.

The sale of a house on South Main Street by the health department brought opposition from six persons living in the immediate vicinity of the house.

It was pointed out that the County Court had nothing to do with either the purchasing or selling of the

Parma marshal resigns

PARMA — City Marshal Hollis "Doc" Lindley submitted a written resignation at 9 a.m. today to the City Council. Lindley did not specify any reason for his resignation, and Mayor Randall Ramsey said he did not know why Lindley resigned.

Ramsey, however, did state that he had talked with Lindley concerning an incident which occurred Saturday between the marshal and another man on a city street.

Ramsey said there were two sides to the story and the matter was not pursued. No charges have been made against the marshal.

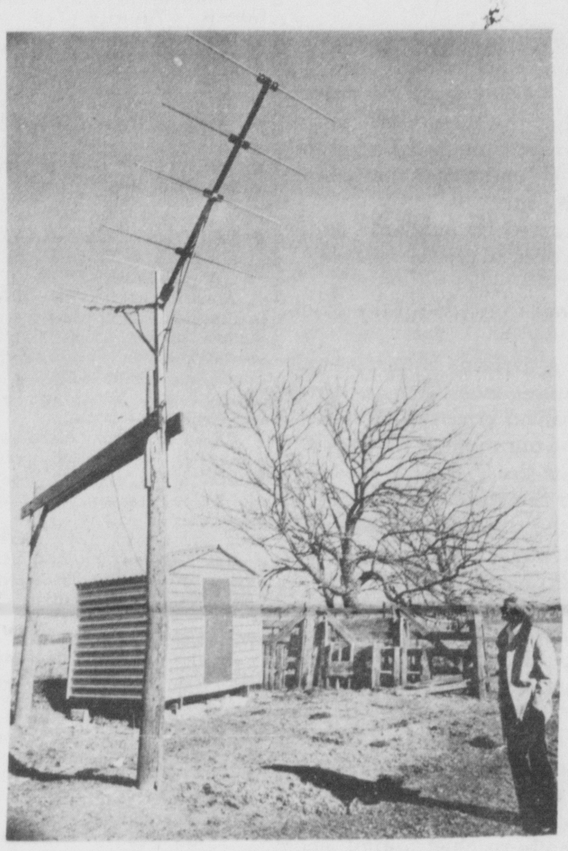
Lindley was first elected in 1967 and had one more year to serve on his present term.

Ramsey said a special election will probably be held to fill the vacancy.

Colvin in fair condition after Dexter stabbling

DEXTER — John Gregory Lynn Colvin, 27, of Dexter underwent emergency surgery Monday night at Dexter Memorial Hospital, where he was taken for treatment of a stab wound in the abdomen. He was reported in fair condition today.

The Stoddard County Sheriff's Department reported today that Colvin was stabbed about 7:30 p.m. at a home on Ray Street in Dexter's east side. A suspect is being held in the county jail for investigation. The stabbing incident was the third reported in the county in the past two weeks, one of which resulted in the death of a Brownwood man.



New air marker

A signal antennae, located on the Arthur Ziegenhorn farm north of Sikeston, is precisely 3.5 nautical miles from the northeast end of the Sikeston Memorial Airport runway. The electronic gear will give pilots an exact direction and altitude for instrument landing approaches. The city of Sikeston purchased the unit, and the Sikeston Pilots Club installed it with proceeds from the annual air show.

Thieves strip motor home, even the sink

A large motor home, stolen over the weekend from the parking lot at Ramada Inn, has been recovered with its interior stripped bare, according to police.

The motor home was recovered about 5 p.m. Monday parked on the Elks Club parking lot on South Main Street. The home belongs to Eugene Harris of Carbondale, Ill.

Police said thieves took everything they could remove, including the kitchen sink. Taken were the sink, refrigerator, stove, air conditioner, electrical generator, mattresses, items on shelves, Harris's personal belongings and even the knobs off the faucets.

Police said all that they found in the home were two sport coats, a white shirt and a pair of gloves.

The home was stolen from the Ramada Inn parking lot Saturday night or Sunday morning.

Arvin workers like small town atmosphere

By WANDA ATCHLEY

DEXTER— In the year 1790, when the first census was taken, there were only six cities in the United States with a population of 8,000. Since that time the figure has grown to over 2,300 American cities of that size with over 50 million Americans living in cities of 100,000 population or more.

In recent years, however, there has been a noticeable national trend back to small towns and rural areas. Whether it be a yearning for open spaces, a search for one's roots or to escape the noise and traffic of city life, people are definitely coming back. Some return to the small towns of their youth and others just in search of an attractive small city where the pace is a little slower.

The new 300,000 square-foot Arvin Industries Inc. plant, which recently located in Dexter, has helped provide a way home for some of these people by providing 400 new job opportunities which previously did not exist.

The city government and Chamber of Commerce of this small Southeast Missouri city have worked hard to encourage industry to locate here by providing an excellent school system, hospital, library, city parks and good streets and roads.

The firm chose Dexter as the site for a new plant after several months of study of 15 cities and, along with other firms which have located here in the past few years, may stop or at least slow down the exodus of the city's young people to city life.

An example of a returnee to small town life is Arvin employe Gene Woodall, his wife Carole and daughter Brenda who recently moved to Dexter from the Chicago area

Woodall, who grew up in the Dexter area but left due to limited job opportunities, says he is glad to be back even though it meant giving up an excellent job and a new home just purchased last year.

Woodall left the Dexter area in the early 1960s when he failed to find suitable employment after his discharge from military service. He said that when he heard of the new plant being constructed here, he applied for a job immediately.

Some of the things he said he missed most in his over 12- year absence from the Southeast Missouri area were the warmth and friendliness of the people here and, since he is an avid sportsman, the outstanding hunting and fishing opportunities this area provides.

Partial operations at the Arvin Industries plant, which manufactures exhaust systems and other automobile related products, began in March. The new plant is located on a 40- acre tract owned by the Chamber of Commerce in Dexter's new West side industrial park.

LIGHT AND LIABILITY

Americans have responded well to the call to cut back on their use of energy — in some cases too well.

The owners of commercial and residential properties who use the energy crisis as an excuse to reduce lighting excessively "can jeopardize the safety of tenants and visitors and subject themselves to liability suits," warns Leonard M. Ring, president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, the nation's largest trial bar association.

The association, says Ring, has received scores of reports from state trial bar associations and individual members telling of a significant increase in injuries and assaults that can be traced directly to insufficient lighting.

Public hallways, stairwells, basements, fire escape exits, corridors, garages and approaches to vending machines and laundry rooms are among the areas that should be property illuminated, he says.

"Failure to provide adequate lighting in these public facilities can lead to serious personal injuries and be an open invitation to muggers and thieves to lurk in a darkened corner, waiting to prey on unsuspecting citizens."

Noting that there is ample precedence which holds a property owner liable for injuries sustained by tenants because of faulty lighting or a landlord's carelessness, Ring stresses that the meager amount of money that could be saved by cutting back on lighting is far outweighed by the time and funds that can be consumed in a lengthy liability suit.

In other words, a penny saved by landlords on the light bill could mean pounds of legal grief.

Inflation has two faces. Americans have seen only one face - the smiling countenance of the artificial well-being that has accompanied government deficits and creeping deterioration of our money. We hope the other face will never be seen in the U. S.

That face is presented in the words of a man who lived in Germany during the disastrous inflation of 1923. "Printing of federal money," he said, "was being farmed out because the state presses couldn't keep up with the job ..." Laundry baskets filled with paper money were used to pay off workers, and "As soon as somebody got his bundle, he'd rush out to buy whatever he could. Anything was more valuable than money ... Foraging in the countryside became commonplace. The railroad stations were jammed with people going out to the peasants to bargain for food ... To get out of the country -- even out of life -- became a widespread desire. Hopelessness is the word."

Inflation in Germany finally reached a point where it took 4.2 billion marks to purchase one U. S. dollar. The end came on the day Germany repudiated the mark. As the editor of U. S. News & World Reports comments, "... it was brought down to earth with a thud-- by stripping off the ciphers and revaluing the mark at 4.2 to the dollar. If you had 4 billion marks that morning, you only had 4 by sunset."

In America, the inflation breeding policies of government and continual tampering with price controls and other artificial restraints on a free market are bringing this country ever- closer to the other face of inflation.

Telling it like it is isn't popular, but we had better listen to someone else besides the spenders in government whom we continue to elect as a majority in Congress.

WHERE ROLL- BACKS AND BOYCOTTS END

Somewhere along the line it should become clear that price roll- backs, boycotts, strikes and punishment of producers are all self- defeating. When we had a meat shortage which forced prices up, strikes and boycotts, price controls and harassment of meat producers all added to the problem. We will be paying the cost of those blunders for years to come. We started getting meat when we let the producers make a living at doing what they know best: competing with each other and producing for the market. Before getting smart, we bankrupted many meat producers and lost a lot of future meat supply.

Now we have energy shortages, toilet tissue shortages, paper bag shortages, steel shortages and are hearing warnings of wheat shortages, bread shortages and milk shortages. At each new shortage somebody rushes into print or to the TV talk show with demands for punishing the producers of the commodity with investigations, harassment and price roll-backs.

Senator "Scoop" Jackson wants to punish energy producers but does nothing about price jumps in the lumber industry in his own area. Other shortsighed politicians want to punish the steel producers and the paper product companies, just so long as the subject industry is in some other politician's constituency.

The only solution is to protect the producers from stupid policies and turn them loose to produce and compete. Where boycotts, roll- backs and harassment end, production begins. It is a good lesson we should learn, before we suffer shortages from which we cannot recover. Putting people to productive work solves shortages. Hunting scapegoats in somebody else's industry produces nothing but misery. HLH

NATIONAL DISARRAY: A PROBLEM OF NUMBERS?

America entered the 1960s in a mood of contentment with domestic affairs and confidence in international ones. The decade ended in an agony of bitterness and frustration over both.

The nation discovered poverty, confronted race, entered a war, endured a series of tragic assassinations and experienced college riots, a drug epidemic and soaring crimes rates, which had been falling through the 1950s. Any one of these phenomena, let alone all of them in combination, was enough to strain the political capabilities and social bonds of Americans.

Oceans of ink have been spilled over why and how it all happened, and the usual answers have to do with institutional and political deficiencies, neglect, racism and moral failure.

Two observers — Prof. James Q. Wilson of Harvard University's department of government and Dr. Robert L. DuPont of the Narcotics Treatment Administration in Washington, D. C. — offer a more basic reason.

The crucial years seem to have been 1962, and 1963, they write in an article,"The Sick Sixties," in Atlantic magazine. Well before the war in Vietnam had fully engaged us or the ghetto riots had absorbed us, the social bonds of family and neighborhood were beginning to come asunder.

There is no single explanation, but one fact is obvious, they say: by 1962 and 1963 there had come of age the persons born during the baby boom of the immediate post - World War II period.

In 1950, there were about 24 million persons aged 14 to 24; by 1960 that had increased to just under 27 million. But during the next 10 years, the number of young people increased by 13 million.

During just the first two years of the 1960s, we added more young people to our population than in any preceding 10 years since 1930.

The schools were among the first institutions to feel the impact. The number of dropouts began to increase. Crime rates, narcotics deaths and youthful unemployment climbed sharply.

Many of these changes, say the authors, can be attributed to the sheer numbers of young persons involved without adducing any theory about the breakdown of the family, of the church or of society.

It is possible, they suggest, that a sudden increase in the number of "risk" persons sets off an explosive increase in the amount of crime, drug addiction and welfare dependency. What were once relatively isolated and furtive acts become widespread and group - supported activities.

Heroin addiction is an example. Addiction spreads like a contagion, with one "friend" turning another on. The sudden, dramatic increase in the number of potential addicts seems to have created a self-sustaining contagion that rapidly produced a more than proportionate number of actual addicts.

At the same time, society did a number of things to nurture this reaction.

The media spread the message that a "youth culture" was being born and celebrated the cult of personal liberation. Enhanced personal mobility made it easier to carry a contagion from one group to another. Social programs designed to combat poverty brought together groups that would have been isolated. Contacts between upper-middle- class suburban youths and ghetto blacks as a result of civil rights programs increased access to the drug culture, or created the mistaken view that such a "culture" existed and was desirable.

In sum, the institutional mechanisms which could handle problems in ordinary times were suddenly swamped in the 1960s.

The authors offer one consolation: what we went through, in that decade is not likely to happen again.

THE PRESIDENT HAS NO PEERS

William Safire, a former speech writer for President Nixon and now a columnist for the New York Times, recently examined several of the most frequently given reasons for demanding that the President resign, and found them wanting.

Among them was the objection that as long as Mr. Nixon remains president, the investigation of his administration will be impeded.

To which Safire replied:

"Of course it will. The President is the target of a grand jury and he can be expected to do what he can to defend himself...

"Face it: Mr. Nixon stands accused, and he will co-operate as little as he must in the prosecution of himself, which under our system, is the right of the accused...

"If his accusers think the President has committed impeachable crimes, they should stop blaming him for not proving it for them. They should appoint their own prosecutor, arm him with the powers of judicial and legislative branches, and make their case or hold their peace."

This is an incredible set of statements, especially from one who was so close to the occupant of the most awesome seat of power in the world.

To acknowledge that President Nixon is entitled to the full protection of the law like any other citizen, just as he surely is simiarly subject to the full penalties of the law, is not to say that he is no different from any other citizen.

He is the President. He has no peer, no counterpart in the United States. There is no officer like him in our government. He is one of the most important men in the world.

He is not an appointed official, subject to dismissal by his superior. He is not an alderman, a mayor, a governor of one of 50 states. He is not a representative or senator, who long ago might have been censured and expelled from Congress by his colleagues.

If the President were anything less than the President, the Watergate scandal would not have assumed the historically and constitutionally prodigious proportions that it did in the first place.

To suggest that the man who faced a crisis with the Soviet Union over the Middle East, the man who in the last extremity pushes the button, the man who has immense power over the lives and welfare of millions of human beings in peace or in war — to suggest that this man is not to be held to a standard of accountability vastly different from that of any ordinary citizen would be ridiculous were it not so frightening.

To suggest that President Nixon may in good conscience watch the nation tear itself apart over Watergate, may benignly contemplate the paralysis of the executive branch, while he exercises his right not to co-operate in the prosecution of himself (why wouldn't it be the exonoration of himself?) is almost incomprehensible.

AGRIBUSINESS IS KEY SOLUTION TO WORLD FOOD SUPPLY

Henry J. Heinz, chairman of the board, H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., has praised the recent stides by agricultural scientists who are revolutionizing man's ability to improve the quality and quantity of his food supply.

He explained that greatly increased harvests have brought growers problems they are not equipped to solve. To translate those harvests into effective means for feeding the world's growing population, he said, will require "the useful role that agribusiness companies can perform ... Our industry has developed technologies which can be put into action once an agricultural area reaches the point of producing more food than it consumes from day to day."

One instrument for making these technologies available is The Agribusiness Council, a nonprofit organization of which Mr. Heinz has been chairman since its inception in 1967. The Council works to match the needs of developing countries with the capabilities and interests of companies, and encourages companies to become active in those developing countries with favorable investment climates.

Mr. Heinz announced the planning of an international conference on agribusiness in Europe in 1974. "If we are successful," he said, "perhaps we can push the food story off the front pages of our newspapers and back to the home economics section, where it belongs."

Jewish Community Angered:

WASHINGTON-- Certainly Atty. Gen. William Saxbe isn't guilty of anti- Semitism regardless of what he has just said about "the Jewish intellectual" being "enamored of the Communist party" in the past. As the nation's top government attorney and law enforcement executive, he's guilty of another provocative crime-- he just didn't do his homework. This, neither President Nixon nor the country itself can afford.

Bill Saxbe used the stereotype totalitarian description of Jewish intellectuals on Wednesday. The anguish in leading Jewish communities was deep. The wires hummed. The Deputy Attorney General Larry Silberman, Jewish, the 34th American to hold this post, hit the phones. Brilliantly he made his points.

Then compounding and confounding it all, Saxbe shifted mental gears. By way of apology he said what he meant was Jewish intellectuals now are anti- Communist because the Soviet Union has shifted its position. Further, said he in effect, the battles against the Communists in the late '40s and early '50s were witch hunts and anti- Semitic at that.

Does this mean that those who fought the Communists because they were the allies of Nazi Germany and the hangmen of all decency were witch hunters and anti-Semites?

Well, for Bill Saxbe's information, it was the Jewish community--which first swung into the fight against American Bolshevism-- and I mean that in the full intellectual sense. It was the Jewish Daily Forward, edited by the late great, bilingual, muckraking journalist Abraham Cahan, which fought first and hardest and still is in the battle.

Let anyone go into closed archives and they will find that it was the Dave Dubinskys and Lou Stulbergs of the International Ladies' Garment Workers union which fought the Stalinists before the big war and actually saved Europe from Communism after the conflict.

It was the garment workers union which swung the ponderous AFL into the battle in the late '30s. And after World War II it was the needle workers who created the political weaponry for the fight inside Europe, in West Berlin, in West Germany, in a decrepit France and in splintered Italy, and so beat back the Communist underworld goons and waterfront squads.

And it is the team of AFL-CIO president George Meany and Jay Lovestone, his devoted and dedicated director of the International Affairs Dept. of the AFL- CIO, who have done more damage to world communism in general and the Soviet Union in particular than any other global force.

Jay Lovestone probably is the nation's most experienced and sophisticated anti-Communist, though it must be understood that Meany makes policy.

Jay is an uncompromising intellectual, a pragmatist who doesn't agitate himself over pseudo- detentes. He knows what happened to the detente with V. I. Lenin of the early '20s, called by the burgeoning Soviets the "NEP"-- New Economic Policy.

War came from that. Death came from that. The Stalinist support of Adolf Hitler came from that. Gas chambers came from that. And from that came what some call the "Cold War" but what actually is the steady, the contiguous development of Secretary Brezhnev's stalag slave- labor encroachment on much of the world.

And from that may yet come the earth's first thermonuclear war-- a Soviet invasion of mainland China.

As for Jewish intellectuals-- they were the earliest to fight and are among the few who still battle world Communism and the American Communist party and its patron state, the Moscow- based Communist international. These intellectuals were-- and are-- the sophisticates of this ideological war. Some spring swiftly to mind: the delightful Morrie Ryskind, Pulitzer Prize winner for "Of Thee I Sing"; author Isaac Don Levine. The late George Sokolsky, a columnist, who advised the late J. Edgar Hoover and many of his colleagues. And younger men-- fabulous Irving Kristol, Danny Bell (then of Fortune magazine), Leo Cherne of the Research Institute, dramatist Sidney Kingsley, Mel Lasky who edited two amazingly effective anti- Communist intellectual magazines, one in Germany and the other in London, after the war. I could list a hundred. They were and are the infighters.

And what of Alger Hiss, charged with betraying our nation as a spy? He was not Jewish. The man who exposed him was-- the late Ben Mandel, of the House Committee on Un- American Activities. Today's political history would be quite different if not for Ben.

Further, Communist party leaders were not Jewish. Nor are they. Bill Saxbe is confused or uninformed. Those he has just hurt need no more wounds. They have suffered enough at the hands of the Soviet propaganda and "disinformation" apparatus.

Jewish Labor Committee president Jack Sheinkman, suggests that Saxbe resign. For the moment that's a bit drastic. Perhaps a correspondence course in elementary tolerance, political history and rap sessions with the old delicatessen crowd could straighten out all this. And with a Cabinet member like Saxbe, Dick Nixon needs no enemies.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Kissinger, Schlesinger Clash Over Detente

WASHINGTON-- Inside the secret policy councils, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger have collided head- on over concessions to Russia.

Kissinger came back from Moscow without the "conceptual breakthrough" he had sought in the strategic arms limitation talks. Now he is pleading behind closed doors for U. S. concessions to keep the detente going.

Sources privy to the secret debate say Kissinger and Schlesinger bitterly disagree over the strategic importance of the heavier missiles Russia is developing. Once these missiles are deployed, each Soviet missile will be able to hurl more warheads than its U. S. counterpart.

Schlesinger contends that the SALT agreement, therefore, must restrict not only the numbers of missiles but their throw- weight. Otherwise, the Soviets will wind up with a 6- to- 1 nuclear superiority, he warns.

This is disputed by Kissinger who insists that concessions can be granted without upsetting the nuclear arms balance. He points out that the Administration has been unable to persuade Congress to remove the trade discrimination against Russia. Now the United States, having originally accepted the principal of restricting only the numbers of missiles, is demanding that the throw-weight also be controlled.

We cannot "thwart" the Soviets from achieving "everything" they sought from the detente, Kissinger has pleaded. He stresses that the detente has made it possible for the United States to pull out of Vietnam, stop construction of a Soviet base in Cuba and reduce tensions in the Middle East.

President Nixon agrees with Kissinger that the detente "has served us far more than it has served them," as one source recalls the President's remarks at a secret session.

Our source quotes the President as acknowledging that our domination of the Middle East peace negotiations has not created a "happy situation" for the Kremlin. Yet the President noted that Soviet leaders have acted "with restraint" and have avoided inflammatory propaganda.

Nevertheless, the President doesn't want to risk giving Russia a nuclear edge, which the Soviets might use for political leverage.

MULTIMILLION PROBE:

The Pentagon's $500- million-a- year CHAMPUS health insurance program is under investigation by Senate probers who fear its worthy aims have been corrupted by mismanagement and fraud.

CHAMPUS stands for Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services. It pays much of the health care at civilian facilities for some six million military dependents and retired GIs.

For weeks, gumshoes from the Senate Investigations subcommittee have been visiting CHAMPUS headquarters in Denver, poring over Pentagon records and interrogating the private firms that handle CHAMPUS contract insuring.

The importance of the study is indicated by the fact that Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Charles Percy, R-Ill., have diverted senior investigators from their vital fuel crisis study to looking into CHAMPUS.

So far, the subcommittee has not been able to nail down absolute proof of fraud. But they have found some negligence and mismanagement in the huge insurance program. One of America's biggest insurers has been the object of special scrutiny by the subcommittee, we have learned.

At the subcommittee, tight-lipped spokesmen confirmed only that the probe was busily going on. Hearings are not expected for months and even a staff report is not yet drafted.

FOOTNOTE: In Denver, a spokesman said CHAMPUS has "been cooperating fully" with the Senate probers. It's "entirely possible" that some fraud may exist in a program as large as CHAMPUS, he conceded. But he said the program is sound, contract monitoring is constant and "we'd be surprised if anything is seriously wrong."

Senate committee approves House unemployment pay bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A House bill to eliminate the waiting week before a person can receive unemployment benefits has cleared the Senate Labor and Management Relations Committee.

It was approved 5-3 Monday night.

Under law, a person does not get paid for the first week of unemployment until he has been out of work for nine weeks.

Under the bill, sponsored by Rep. Earl Schleft, D-Dellwood, a person would get paid at the same time he now gets paid, which is 14 days after he is put out of work. However, instead of getting paid only for the second week, he would get paid for two weeks' unemployment benefits.

The bill is supported by various labor interests and is opposed by some businessmen and the state Chamber of Commerce.

Jerry Tucker, political coordinator for the United Auto Workers in St. Louis, said, "We do not view it exclusively as an organized labor bill. The waiting week now discriminates against the workers as a class."

Joseph Dietrich, assistant director of employment security for the state, said the state's unemployment insurance trust fund is at $215 million and is drawing $11.5 million in interest a year.

TAKING OVER A LOAN

VA loans are partially guaranteed by the Veterans Administration and hence, like FHA loans, involve less risk for the lenders than conventional loans and carry lower interest rates. Many low-interest VA loans have been made with little or no down payment, which makes them real bargains to assume when buying a home financed in this manner.

A veteran can now normally transfer a GI loan with no strings attached if the VA approves the new owner's credit, and the new owner assumes the veteran's loan obligation.

But there are legalities to observe and pitfalls to avoid. For example, shifting the debt to the new owner doesn't automatically erase the seller's responsibility for repayment of the loan in case of default. But this can be arranged with just a little extra effort. In these matters, it's wise to have the professional guidance of a Realtor and lawyer.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Mitchell is Past President of the Sikeston Board of Realtors and is currently serving as Vice- President of the Missouri Association of Realtors.)

Susan Knauer is March bride of Gary W. Smith

Marriage vows uniting Miss Susan Arlene Knauer and Gary Wayne Smith were solemnized at 3 p.m. March 16 in the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell P.Knauer of Sikeston, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Smith of St. Louis.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight organza over satapeau. English lace adorned the yoke, cuffs and hemline. The bishop sleeves formed a wide cuff which came to a point on the back of her hands. The dress also featured an empire waistline.

The bride wore a mantilla veil attached to a contoured cap. It was encircled with a band of English lace. The bride carried a lace fan covered with delicate yellow roses.

Miss Lori Jo Neiman of Valley Forge, Pa., was maid of honor, Miss Rebacah Jean Barnes of Sikeston was bridesmaid and Andrea Fults of Sikeston was flower girl.

John Pinkley of St. Louis served as best man. John Balsiger of St. Louis was groomsman, and Timothy Thornton of Sikeston and Kenneth Smith of St. Louis were ushers.

Mrs. Jim Graham of Sikeston presided at the guestbook, and John Netler was in charge of music arrangements.

Following a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the newlyweds are living in St. Louis where Smith is employed by Federal Express Airlines.

Ann Landers

College night owl should use ear plugs; change roommates

Dear Ann Landers: You have spoken up in behalf of waitresses, telephone operators, cab drivers, non-smokers, etc. And now will you please say a kind word for college students who like to sleep in the morning?

I'm a night person and always have been. I don't come alive until 11:00 a.m. I scheduled my classes so I could sleep late because it is sheer torture for me to get up in the morning.

I live in a dorm and that's the rub. Some people around here pop out of bed at the crack of dawn. They think it's their God- given right to awaken the rest of the world. Then there's another problem. Every morning this week the goldarned phone has jarred me out of a sound sleep at 8:00 a.m. At that miserable hour, everyone else is in class or asleep. Since my room is closest to the phone I have to crawl out of bed and talk to some dizzy dame who is looking for a babysitter or struggling with some other earth- shattering problem.

If this letter makes your column I promise you it will be tacked to hundreds of college bulletin boards from Maine to California and I, personally, will have it framed for our dorm.-- X- hausted

Dear X: I'm glad you didn't ask for a solution to the problem, because I don't have one. Earplugs might help some but until you can move out and share quarters with a couple of other night owls, you'll have to put up with the agony, Bub.

Dear Ann Landers: Once again you not so subtly promote the idea that withholding sex is a smart way to get a husband. Maybe so, but isn't that deceitful? I'd hate to think the only reason a man married me was because he had to or I wouldn't go to bed with him.

Please don't assume I'm in favor of promiscuity. I'm not. But a woman's decision to bed or not to bed should be based on a better reason than snagging a wedding ring.

Prostitution is the trading of sex for money. The girl who holds out for marriage is actually selling herself for a furnished apartment or a split-level home, plus a ring on her finger and a piece of paper she'll never look at again. Big deal. I know a cutie- pie who followed that formula-- "no marriage, no sex"-- and then it was "no new dress, no sex," and finally, "I get my way or no sex." She said it worked every time-- bragged about it-- but I'd hate like hell to have a marriage based on such outrageous blackmail.

As far as I'm concerned, the honest female agrees to go to bed with a man because she wants to. And if she refuses, it should be because she DOESN'T want to.-- Outspoken

Dear Out: You say you're not in favor of promiscuity, but if a girl wants to-- nine times in two weeks, with eight different fellows-- that, in my book, makes her pretty darned promiscuous.

I am not suggesting that if a girl doesn't save her virginity for the man she marries she's a tramp, but I've received stacks of letters from heartsick dames who were dropped by men they were really crazy about and they admit very frankly, "Everything was beautiful until I went to bed with him. From then on he treated me differently. The magic was gone. I'd give anything if I could turn our relationship back to where it was before I did that foolish thing."

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 35c in coin to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Talking is important to children

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economists

Mothers of preschool children are often heard to complain that their lives are dull because they have no one to talk with but children. Attitudes might be different if mothers realized the importance of this "talk". Language is necessary if the child is to progress to complicated levels of thinking.

Some experts say that early language learning depends a great deal on how much parents talk with their children. Evidence was found in Head Start studies that language development of disadvantaged children is generally below that of middle class children Although differences in verbal interaction patterns of people are recognized, researchers are not certain which factors within the home setting cause these differences.

Increased understanding of home conditions which help develop the child's language could lead to improved communication between mothers and young children. In turn, verbal skills, so important to success in school and later life, could be improved.

With these ideas in mind, Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center studied "talking patterns" of 4-year-olds and their mothers. They found that as there were children in the same room, mothers and child tended to talk and interact less.

How do you communicate with a young child? At the heart of good communication is a sharing of experiences and thoughts.

If the children are helped to share their thoughts, they feel they are worthwhile. You can do this also by letting them know they are special for their own sake. Ask them to do things they can do best and praise them for what they do well. You can always talk with children about their efforts, even if he didn't do a perfect job.

In a given day, you can only talk or interact with your small child so much. Children need to know words and have a chance to use them if they are to learn communication. They need to know the meaning of what they see hear, touch, taste, and smell. Talk to them as you work around the home, but remember to communicate also means to listen. Get down on their level, look them in the eye and listen. It was once said we have one mouth and 2 ears, so we should listen twice as much as we talk. With preschoolers and children of any age, both are vital.

You, as parents, set the stage for communicating effectively and each home consists of different actors and scenes. Reading your child's cues will guarantee good communication and feelings for all.

Coaches of the Year

Eighth annual team selections

The Daily Standard officially brings down the curtain on the 1973-74 Southeast Missouri high school basketball season with the announcement of its eighth annual "Dream Team" selections made by the DS sports panel of coaches.

A total of 79 schools submitted nominations for the teams and the list of over 118 names was narrowed to 15. Among this group are all-staters Andy Smelser of Risco; Roy Bowman of Sikeston; Jeff Jackson of Kelly; Frankie Robinson of Libourn; Stan Ray of Cape Central and Louis Lucas of Bismarck.

The papers all-academic team will be announced Wednesday.

ALL-STAR

DAVID TROPF — David used his 6-foot-6 frame to help lead the Advance Hornet's of coach Carroll Cookson to fourth place in the class A state tournament this past season and as a junior is looking forward to next season with great enthusiasm. David surprised most people with his ability to hit from the 10-15 foot range and with his free throw shooting ability. He scored 570 points in 30 games for the Hornets for a 17 point per game clip. He pulled down 510 rebounds. David had a high game of 32 points and 25 rebounds in one contest.

RON OLLER — This 5-foot-9 guard- forward was one of the area's best shooters. Ron led the Advance Hornets in scoring with an 18 point per game average. Ron twice scored 43 points in a game as a junior this season. When allowed to shoot from either corner Ron can pop the nets at a fantastic percentage. He and Davif Tropf give coach Cookson the neucleus of another state class A finalists in 1975.

ARMOND PORTER — Armond has led the Matthews Pirates in rebounding and has averaged in double figures for the past two seasons. At 6-2 he is a good jumper and a deadly shooter from inside the free throw circle area. He works hard on the boards and frequently gets the second shot off the offensive boards. Armond was named to The Daily Standard all-academic team in his junior year as well as repeating the feat this season.

LEON JOHNSON — Leon was the big man for coach Terry Tomlinson's Neelyville Tigers for the past two seasons. At 6-5 Leon led the Tigers in scoring with 416 points in 22 games with a season game high of 31. He grabbed off 263 rebounds with a game high of 20. He led the Tigers to first place in the Bloomfield Christmas tournament and the Poplar Bluff Invitational championship.

ROLLY PERKINS — At 6-foot-1 Rolly can jump with anyone in the area and has been instrumental in leading coach Mark Rascher's Parma Pirates into the state tournament two consecutive years, class S in 1973 and class A in 1974. Rolly averaged 15 points a game in 20 contests this season and 15 rebounds per game. His game high of points scored was 32.

CARSON KELLY — Carson is undoubtedly one of the top basketball players in the state. At 6-foot-1 he possesses tremendous jumping ability. Carson was the man to whom coach Dan Kight of the Delta Bobcats turned to when he needed some scoring as Kelly scored 360 points in 22 games for the Bobcats as well as leading the team in rebounds with 303. Carson's high game in points scored was 31 and his rebound top game was 25. His hard work through the entire game made him the ball player he was.

ANDY SMELSER — This 6-foot-1 junior guard was the Risco Tiger's mister everything. Andy scored 360 points in 20 games for coach Stan Whitson's Tigers with a single game high of 34. Andy had a game average of 18.4 points and averaged 11 assists per game. He pulled down an average of seven rebounds a game while shooting at a 51.3 per cent clip from the floor and 86 per cent from the free throw line. Andy was name to The Daily Stnadard all-academic team as a sophomore and repeats this year. He received the honor of being named to the all-state team this season and is already being scouted by a few colleges.

STAN RAY — At 6-9 Stan was easily the tallest man on the all star team. As a junior center he scored 354 points in 19 games this season with a 28 point production for a game high. Stan was named to the all state class AAAA team this season and is looking forward to an even bigger season in 1974-75.

OWEN SUGGS — The second Cape Central Tiger to make the all star team along with Stan Ray for coachDan Milligan. Owen stands at 6-6 and is a fine shooter from the outside range. Suggs gave the Tigers a deadly one-two punch in scoring and rebounding which led them into quarter - final round play in the class AAAA state before bowing out to St. Louis Central.

JEFF JACKSON — Jeff is the only repeater on the all star team as he was the only underclassman to make the team last season. Jeff's basketball feats are almost numberless as he has been named to all the all star teams his last two years at Kelly high school. Jeff was the Hawks team leader the last two seasons as the 6-foot-2 senior forward led coach Nick Lanpher's Hawks into the state tournament for the past two seasons. Jeff has averaged around 19 points per game for the past two seasons and has been the team's leading rebounder. His career ended on a high note this season with the selection to the class AA all state team.

FRANKIE ROBINSON — At 6-foot-1 this flashy sophomore has nothing but brightness to look forward to in the future for the Lilbourn Panthers. Frankie was coach Larry Warren's leading scorer this past season with an 18 point per game average and pulled down seven rebounds a game from his forward position. Frankie became the first sophomore to make the all-state team in any class in the history of the team. If Frankie continues to improve over the next two seasons as he did between his freshman and sophomore year he could possibly be put in the same class as Jo Jo White of St. Louis, Win Wilfong of Puxico, and Bill Bradley of Crystal City and John Brown of Dixon.

KENNY BRIGHT — Kenny was the tallest man on coach Ronnie Cookson's Scott Central Braves' team this season as the 6-foot-1 jumping back led the Braves in rebounds and blocked shots. Kenny averaged in double figures this season and has been a starter for the past two seasons. Coach Cookson hopes to surround Bright with a few good shooters next season.

CLAUDE MCFERREN — Claude was one of a two brother guard combination that helped lead the Liblourn Panthers to the state class AA championship this season. Claude had a deadly shot from the 20 foot range and was exceptionally quick as the 5-foot-9 guard concentrated on defense more than offense this season. He averaged about 10 points a game for coach Larry Warren's Panthers.

ROY BOWMAN — At 6-foot-1 Roy was the leading basketball player for coach N. P. McDaniels Sikeston Bulldogs this past season as a senior. Roy was an outstanding player in his junior year but was overshadowed by Pope Hunt. Roy can do just about anything on a basketball court. He can handle the ball in a press and shoot from the 20 foot range and play defense. He averaged 18.4 points a game with a shooting percentage of 67 from the field. Roy was named to the class AAAA all-state team this season. Roy was also the area's top middle linebacker on the football team and is tops in his senior class in the academic department being named to The Daily Standard all-academic team for the past two seasons.

LOUIE LUCAS — Louie was the outstanding shooter in the entire Mineral Area Activities Association conference averaging above 20 points per game. He possessed the quick jump shot which is so difficult to defense. Louie was named to the Class A all-stae team this season to cap a fine high school career. He averaged 28 points per game as a junior and 30 as a senior. His fieldgoal average was 55.5 as a junior and 52 per cent his senior season. He averaged 10 rebounds a game.

Aaron hit fastball for 715th

ATLANTA (AP) — Al Downing vanished quickly into the Atlanta night, leaving but a brief tape-recorded message in his wake after surrendering the historic shot.

Reporters rushed to the Los Angeles Dodgers clubhouse Monday night at the end of the National League game in which Henry Aaron slammed one of Downing's fastballs 400 feet away for No. 715, but the little left-hander was nowhere to be found.

"Downing left 10 minutes ago in a taxi cab," said the visiting clubhouse man Mark Gladolich.

"I don't know where he is," said Los Angeles Manager Walter Alston. "He's probably going to get something to eat then go back to the hotel."

But the 32-year-old journeyman pitcher of 13 major league seasons did tape a brief interview shortly after he was knocked out of the box in the fourth inning when Aaron connected for his 715th homer.

The two-run homer keyed a four-run inning as the Braves went on to a 7-4 victory before a record Atlanta Stadium crowd of 53,775 and a national television audience. The home run, on a 1-0 pitch, came at 9:07 p.m. EDT.

Downing, who went into the dugout during the respite, promptly walked the next two batters and was removed from the contest.

"It was a fast ball, right down the middle of the upper part of the plate," he said of the blast.

"I was trying to get it down to him but I didn't get it down, and he hit it good, as he would. I didn't have good control, when I got behind him, I was just trying to get the ball up. It didn't bother me though."

Joe Ferguson, the Dodgers catcher, said he asked Aaron his first time up if he could concentrate and Aaron replied, "Not too good."

But he certainly did his second time up after drawing a walk in his first plate appearance.

The pitch landed in Atlanta relief pitcher Tom House's glove after it cleared the leftcenter field fence.

"That's the highlight of my career," said House. "It's something I can tell my grandchildren when I get old."

Bill Buckner, the Dodger leftfielder who made an acrobatic leap which fell some 20 feet short, said in admiration of Aaron:

"It seems like he can hit a home run anytime he wants to. The only thing that brightened up the game was Henry's home run. The noise from the crowd was super loud. It was the loudest applause I've ever heard."

"Every time he hits another homer, he'll be setting a new record," said Braves Manager Eddie Mathews.

"The first chance he got he did it. Boom. All the hubbub and he did it the first time he swung. Just like he hit 714 in Cincinnati."

What's the law?

The case of the devilish minister

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The Rev. Hoople carried out his ministerial duties with a decided air of despair. And he did so with good reason. His parish was so poor it couldn't even support the proverbial country church house let alone the despondent Reverend. In fact, after a while, he found that most of his praying was for his back salary. When it wasn't forthcoming, he finally stopped praying and demanded his money in court.

"I haven't been paid in six months," he informed the judge.

"And, since the only assets possessed by the church is the church itself, I demand that it be ordered sold immediately so that I can be paid."

"Only the devil himself would demand that a church be sold," responded the horrified parishioners. "Without a church, we could lose our way to the Pearly Gates and that would be terrible."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the sale of the church so that the Rev. Hoople could be paid?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while it might be an "energetic" measure to take, a church may be sold to pay its debts where there are no assets out of which to pay those debts. And, concluded the judge, wages owed to a minister is a debt for which the church may be sold.

Judiciary committee awaits answer on request for tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee is waiting for a promised reply from the White House to its request for tapes of 42 presidential conversations.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., has scheduled a committee meeting for Wednesday or Thursday to deal with the question of a subpoena if today's reply is unsatisfactory.

In a letter released by Rodino Monday, James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's chief impeachment lawyer, said that despite progress in recent weeks the dispute has not been resolved.

He indicated the White House is not prepared to surrender all 42 presidential conversations the committee wants and requested Feb. 25.

The committee last week set a deadline of today for a yes or no answer from the White House as to whether it will give up the tapes.

There is a possibility that partial compliance by the White House will be sufficient to head off the confrontation a subpoena would produce.

Committee Counsel John Doar disclosed last week that the committee is willing to accept initially only those tapes St. Clair says are relevant to the impeachment inquiry. But the committee would retain the right to demand all the tapes it originally requested.

Rodino is also being put under pressure by some Republican members to permit a vote this week on the procedures the committee will follow in handling the evidence gathered by the impeachment staff.

Rodino and Doar would like to keep the procedure flexible until the documentary evidence has been presented, but Republicans are demanding that the right of St. Clair to be present during the presentation be settled now.

Rodino said the staff is having a hard time drafting the procedures and that they would not be ready for consideration until the second week after the Easter recess. A major problem, he said, is devising a means of protecting the confidentiality of the evidence during its presentation.

Bluff firm gets Bernie contract

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Apparent low bids on three state projects were opened Friday.

The only bidder on repairs and replacements to the National Guard Armory, Bernie, was Smith and Livingston, Poplar Bluff, at $6,250.

At $7,641.79, Patton Plumbing, Heating and Cooling, Portageville, was the apparent low bidder on repairs and replacements to the National Guard Armory in Portageville.

School gas supply cut off

STOVER, Mo. (AP) — The Stover school was closed Friday because the Missouri Utilities Co. has turned off the supply of natural gas to heat the buildings.

Merrell Taylor, superintendent of the kindergarten through -12th grade school of 700 pupils, said "It was quite cold."

The Missouri Utilities Co. has run short of natural gas. The Stover school has no standby heating system.

The Versailles schools, which also had their natural gas supply cut off, remained open using standby LP gas units.

Rejuvenated plan will pump $225 million to rural areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A rejuvenated federal conservation program called REAP, once terminated by a budget-conscious Nixon administration, will pump $225.5 million back into rural areas as payments to farmers for projects they carried out last year.

The Agriculture Department announced Monday that REAP — the Rural Environmental Assistance Program — will be opened to the full $225.5 million authorized by Congress.

Officials conceded that the full REAP allocation was the result of a U.S. District Court decision late last year which ordered the 1973 plan be put back into effect.

The conservation payments were set up by Congress in 1936 under the title, Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP), and continued basically unchanged for many years.

Over the years many attempts were made to reduce or change the popular program, but each time Congress intervened to restore funds and keep the basic cost-sharing goals intact.

Congress set the 1973 program — by then changed to REAP — at $225.5 million, but the USDA announced it would be held to $140 million. Then, in December 1972, the department suspended REAP entirely for 1973 after spending or committing only $12 million to $15 million of its announced budget.

The court decision overturned the termination order, and last month USDA announced the program would be reopened so farmers could be paid for undertaking approved projects last year. At the time, officials indicated the $140 million originally set by the department would be spent.

However, in Monday's announcement offocials noted the court decision and added that it was interpreted to mean the full $225.5 million authorized by Congress for 1973 REAP operations. Thus, $85.5 million more than the original spending level will be available to farmers.

The increase to $225.5 million means payments for 1973 REAP could total the most under the program since 1961 when those totaled $230 million, according to department records.

Meantime, the department has set up a streamlined program for 1974 called the Rural Environmental Conservation Program—RECP—with a budget of $90 million. Congress had authorized $175 million for it.

Motorists urged to beware of gasoline saving gadgets

"Save up to 2 gallons of gas every hour you're on the highway!"

"Burn water in your car...up to 5 more miles per gallon."

"Amazing new ignition activator...multiplies spark to give... better gas mileage."

Those claims for three devices advertised in an automotive parts catalog are typical of the benefits promised motorists by companies that sell so-called gas savers.

In a time of shortages and higher gasoline prices, promoters of such devices appear to have increased their sales efforts in some states. But do the gadgets really deliver?

"I don't know of anything that motorists can attach that will improve their mileage a significant amount," says automotive engineer Bob Knoll, head of Consumers Union's auto test division.

The Pennsylvania Bureau of Consumer Protection has issued a general warning to motorists to be wary of claims that various gadgets will improve gas mileage.

And state attorneys general in California, Arkansas, Kansas and Minnesota have looked into the advertising of various manufacturers. In some cases they have taken or threatened legal action over the claims.

Particularly popular among manufacturers this year are devices that mix water with the gasoline.

A shop near Albany, N.Y., reported installing about 300 such devices which it guarantees will increase a car's mileage from 1.4 to 5 miles per gallon. It costs $49.50 plus $20 installation.

"They're going like gangbusters," said a spokesman for the shop.

A spokesman for General Motors, however, said its engineers "know of no fuel economy benefits from water injection."

Water injection was used in some World War II fighter planes, but the purpose was to prevent preignition under heavy loads and not to obtain economy, the GM spokesman said.

Abortion regulation measure raises constitutional arguments

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Senate Criminal Justice Committee sent to the floor of the Senate today an abortion regulation measure which prevoked extensive debate in the House.

The bill, approved after a hearing Monday night, places limitations on abortions in the first three months of pregnancy and adds one additional requirement during the second and third three-month periods.

Constitutional arguments were raised in the House and at the committee hearing a St. Louis attorney cited a number of provisions of the bill he felt could be in conflict with the constitution.

A number of physicians testifying on the bill cited dangers of abortion and scientific evidence they said indicated that a fetus can feel pain as early as eight weeks after conception.

Strawberry Festival crafts show to have new look

DEXTER — The Arts and Crafts portion of the annual Strawberry Festival planned here May 20-25 will be under the direction of Bob Brison, local elementary school principal.

Brison spoke briefly at the retail merchants meeting held last week and asked for suggestions and ideas in making this year's event "bigger and better".

One major change in the arts and crafts events was the decision to make it an outdoor festival to the held the weekend of May 24-25 at the West City Park.

Brison outlined plans to include artists from a wide area and also stressed the importance of including "young and old and every type of craft from painting to quilting."

He asked that the merchants assist in the event in several phases of planning and working at the festival and received a pledge of help from individuals in the organization.

Brison urges that any individual planning to enter the festival contact him or Mrs. Mary Ellen Blankenship at the Chamber of Commerce office and tell the type of art to be exhibited.

"We are interested in all types of art and crafts and if you know of someone who would attend the festival and bring their work, please pass his or her name along to us so they can be contacted as soon as possible," he added.

Many cities throughout the Midwest are turning to outdoor arts and crafts festivals and the popularity of this type of informal event draws hundreds of people, it was pointed out.

With the help of many people in the community, Dexter can also have this type of show as a focal point of the upcoming Strawberry Festival, Brison said.

Children Lit. class planned

PORTAGEVILLE — The University of Missouri proposes to offer a two- hour credit course, E196 Children's Literature, as a concentrated offering scheduled to begin May 28 at 4 p.m. in the Delta Center Portageville.

The course will meet four hours per day May 29, 30, 31 and June 3, 4, 5 and 6. If the hour of 4 p.m. is not agreeable with the majority of the participants, a vote may be taken during the first session to change the schedule to a more convenient time.

The course fulfills one of the requirements for state certification of elementary teachers. It is also required for librarians and nurses.

Barge worker reported in fair condition

CAPE GIRARDEAU--George Urhahn, 47, of Oran was reported in fair condition this morning at Southeast Missouri Hospital, where he was taken after becoming ill Monday on a barge about five miles north of Cape Girardeau.

Urhahn, who has a history of diabetes, became extremely ill about 2:30 p.m. while working on the C. H. McMillan barge. His co-workers waved down a yacht owned by Ed Riley and transported Urhahn to the yacht. The Cape County Ambulance Service awaited the yacht at Huckstep Boat Dock in Cape Girardeau.

The Cape Girardeau fire department was also called to the Huckstep Boat Dock when a gas truck overturned prior to Urhahn's arrival at the dock.

Norbert Schlegel of Cape Girardeau parked his truck on a hill and went into the Huckstep office to inquire about the Urhahn incident after he was asked by the ambulance driver where he should park.

The truck rolled down the hill and overturned, spilling 900 gallons of fuel. Norbert said he had pulled the emergency brake on the vehicle.

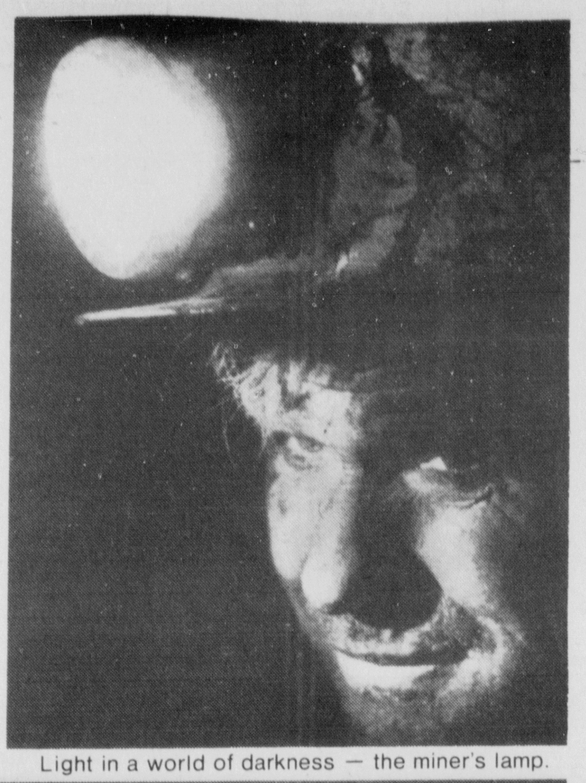
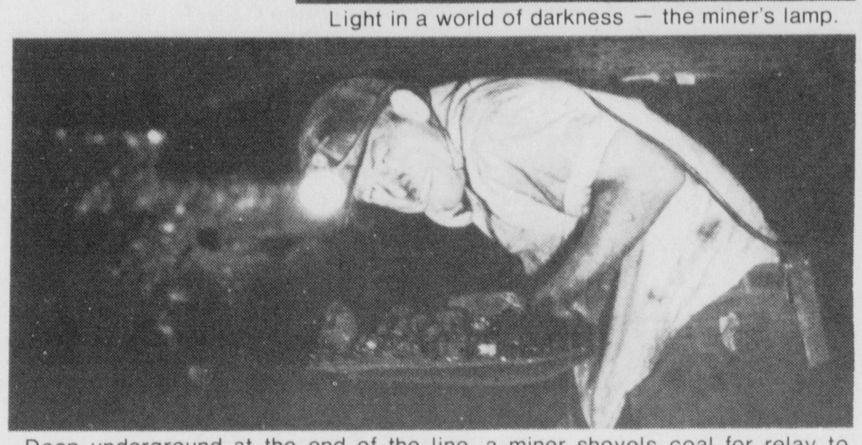
Coal comes back

Far from being the doomed industry as pictured just yesterday, coal is suddenly back in business thanks to today's energy pinch. Mines nestled among the Appalachians of West Virginia are stepping up operations. Photographer Kenneth Murray captures mining today, a study in contrasts.



Light in a world of darkness — the miner's lamp.



Deep underground at the end of the line, a miner shovels coal for relay to mechanized carts and the surface.

property, but according to law, the deed to the property must be in the name of Mississippi County. When the health department sold the property, the court had to issue the deed to the buyer.

On Feb. 2, according to Mississippi County Treasurer Deema Atteberry, $500 in earnest money was deposited by Perry Gillispie in the county health department account toward the purchase of the property. On March 28, a check for $9,500 from Ed C. Marshall Jr. for payment of the property was also deposited in the health department account. The deed was first made to Gillispie and later to Marshall.

The house was purchased by the health department about five years ago and plans were to remodel it for offices of the department. The plan was dropped when the department purchased an office from Dr. Charles Rolwing on East Market Street.

Resolutions to make owners eligible for insurance

PORTAGEVILLE — The City Council Monday night adopted enabling resolutions to make property owners eligible for flood insurance provided by the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, according to City Clerk Raymond Secoy.

The resolutions call for enforcement of a building code ordinance for future new construction and improvements of present structures and adopting land use and control measures designed to guide future developments away from flood hazard areas.

Secoy said the street paving program was discussed and that a meeting is scheduled later this week to make final plans for additional paving, which is dependent upon agreement by 51 per cent of the property owners along certain designated streets.

The city ambulance service is expected to begin operations May 2 when attendants have completed a training course now in progress at Sikeston. Most of the required equipment has arrived or is due to arrive by that time, Secoy said.

Assessment forms are due

BENTON — Scott County Assessor William "Bill" Ferrell requests that residents who have not returned their personal property assessment sheet to his office to do so within the next two weeks.

If his office fails to receive the forms, Ferrell said it will be necessary to determine assessments from a list received from the Department of Revenue on vehicle registrations which is not always correct. "Sometimes it will list cars the owner has already sold," he remarked.

He said about 80 per cent of assessment lists have been returned to his office.

Witnesses testifying for the city of Chaffee were: Mary Frances Burnett, city clerk; Charles Cunningham, city collector; Ted Ziegler of Scott City; and Morris Welsh, a member of the City Council.

Cunningham testified his records showed that the residents had not paid their trash bill during the months of September, October and November.

"Regardless of whether the city residents pay their share of the money, the city must pay the contractor his salary," Cunningham said, adding that of each $3 fee collected $2.75 goes to the contractor.

Under cross examination, Cunningham said 1,003 homes in Chaffee are receiving collection service. He said there is a slight possibility a few citizens in Chaffee are not being billed for their trash pickups if they do not have water or sewer facilities.

Ziegler, who drives the solid waste truck for the city, said he didn't stop at some homes to pick up refuse because they did not have any trash set out.

Welsh said he had checked several times with the city collector to be sure everyone was being billed for solid waste services.

Testifying for the defense were Linden Duncan and Mrs. Frank Hobbs.

Duncan said he had never used the service provided by the city and that he had always taken his refuse to the Scott County sanitary landfill near Morley.

The attorney for the city told the jury that the city of Chaffee provides a service to the people regardless of whether they take advantage of it or not.

The defense attorney said it was a question of what was right or wrong and that if citizens did not receive service they should not have to pay for it.

Dick Beall, chairman of the ambulance committee, presented the council a check for $275 to be applied toward the purchase of a new ambulance.

The council voted to purchase a new mosquito fogging machine for $700, plus trade- in.

A special meeting of the City Council will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday to discuss a proposed one- cent city sales tax.
